KLAN CROSSES BLAZE ON LONG ISLAND

New York, Feb. 13.—Three Long Island towns were aroused today by the mysterious appearance of three flaming crosses, fifteen feet high, believed to have been erected by members of the Ku Klux Klan under cover of night.

The crosses appeared in Freeport, Lynbrook and Long Beach. The cross in Freeport was near the Municipal Auditorium where a meeting of Nassau County negroes was in progress.

Firemen permitted the cross, constructed of pine timber, to burn itself out. At Lynbrook the cross was found opposite the Soldiers' Monument. The crosses at the three places all burst into flame at the same time.

FIRE TRAPS WOMAN IN HER APARTMENT

Mrs. Florence Read of 1808 Washington street was trapped in her third floor apartment when fire broke out in a store room of the Goldsmith Cigar Company on the second floor and swept up through the hallways to the upper floors. Colin Nicholson, an employe of the Camden Market, heard her cries for help, dashed upstairs and brought her to safety.

Will Brand Girls Won by French

Coblenz, Feb. 13 (By the Associated Press).—German societies and clubs strenuously oppose allowing German women to have anything to do with the French soldiers socially.

Those who thus violate public opinion are threatened with branding and with tar and feathers or hair bobbing treatments.

One opera singer who has been engaged successively to a British, American and, lastly, a French officer, has been hissed off the stage and threatened with a dueling in the Rhine.

NEAR RIOT WHEN TUNNEL IS TIED UP

The worst tieup of the East Boston tunnel since it was built caused near-riots early today at Maverick square in East Boston and Devonshire street in Boston.

Hundreds of people risked their lives and violated a law when, angered and disgusted by a delay of nearly an hour, they piled out of the station at Maverick square and walked to Boston in the tunnel.

At the Devonshire street station the tunnel walkers were greeted by mobs of Bostonians on their way to the shops and factories of East Boston. There a couple of burly coppers—one of them was Sergeant George F. Misheney, one of the biggest men on the force—were working like Trojans to keep the crowd in order.

The spirit of the crowd was ugly, and it required heroic work from Misheney and Patrolman James Morash of the East Boston station to keep the delayed workers from aggressive disorder.

The trouble at Maverick square was caused by a Chelsea-Meridian street car which crept away from the station a few feet and then stopped and stayed stopped. The folks on the platform waited patiently for five minutes, impatiently for five minutes more and then some hardy adventurer leaped to the tracks and started his walk through the tunnel.

Others followed, and within a few minutes hundreds were walking on the tracks.

This completely tied up tunnel traffic for another hour or more, making car service either way practically impossible.

Woman Victim of Alleged $1,000,000 Swindle Says She Was Won by Glib Talk

Twelve secret indictments have been returned against persons connected with the Inter City Trust, which is alleged to have victimized over a thousand persons in four Massachusetts counties, most of them women, in a $1,000,000 swindle. Fifty more indictments are promised.

It was learned today that in addition to the indictments against S. Leland Montague, sole trustee of the company, an indictment had been returned against another official of the firm—a well-known Bostonian—who has signified that he would surrender today.

In addition ten indictments were returned against salesmen of the concern.

These men are in New York, and the police of that city are rounding them up, it was stated today.

They are part of a crew of sixty salesmen imported from New York. Indictments will be gotten for the remaining fifty as soon as their identity is learned.

ROUND UP SALESMEN.

All sixty salesmen, it is said, are high-powered "Kreger" men, schooled under the expert tutelage of Frank Kreger. Indictments are outstanding against many of them in New York.

Credit for the roundup of this outfit belongs to Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta of the Boston police, who got the evidence and rounded up some of the gang.

Montague, whose career in high finance is alleged to be no less colorful than his impressive monicker, offered a profit of 1,000 per cent.

He made Charles Ponzi seem like a conservative business man. Ponzi offered only 50 per cent. every 90 days.

So unctious was S. Leland Montague, that he even convinced the manager of a banking branch, who not only indorsed S. Leland Montague as a man and citizen of irreproachable character, but recommended the purchase of shares in his enterprise, the Inter-City Trust, of No. 311 Boylston street.

Following his arrest in the hand-

Order Filed in House Calls for Rigid Investigation of the Fuel Head's Work

An order to conduct a sweeping investigation of the administration of James J. Phelan, Massachusetts Fuel Administrator, and the conduct of his office, was filed in the House today by Representative John H. Drew of Roxbury.

The order calls for the appointment of a legislative committee consisting of two members of the Senate and three members of the House and invests them with full powers to conduct a sweeping probe.

The result of the committee's finding and its recommendations shall be made by March 15, the order provides.

The order is contained in six paragraphs and it is significant that one

Priest Tells Story of Kidnaped Nun

Herewith is the graphic story of the kidnaping of Sister Cecilia from a Maryland convent, as exclusively told to Cosmopolitan News Service by the supervisor of the institution.

By REV. FR. WILLIAM J. KANE,
Supervisor of Notre Dame Convent.

Frederick, Md., Feb. 13.—Sister Cecilia, one of the most devout nuns in the Order of Notre Dame, was kidnaped from the convent between 2 and 3 o'clock Monday and after undergoing one of the most harrowing experiences that could befall a woman, is back safe with us today, thanks to God's tender mercy.

For an hour and a half before she was beaten over the head, drugged and carried from the convent and placed in an automobile, two suspicious looking men, dressed like laborers, were seen lurking in the vicinity by several of the pupils. Some of the little ones say that just before Sister Cecilia's disappearance a woman was seen peering through the window from the front stoop.

SHE WAS ALONE.

Whether this woman had anything to do with the kidnaping and gave a signal that the coast was clear, we do not know. No other nun was in the convent proper. All were either at classes with the students

63 ORPHANS RESCUED BY NURSE

Carried to Safety When the Flames Destroy State Institution at Franklin, N. H.

Franklin, N. H., Feb. 13.—One man was killed and sixty-three children were saved by nurses when fire swept the New Hampshire Orphans' Home, three miles out on Daniel Webster highway, today.

Plunging through smoke and flame, three courageous women carried the children from the institution nursery to safety. The oldest of those rescued was seven.

The victim and three other firemen were pinned beneath a falling wall. Another man, an employe, was burned.

The dead man is Peter Savoie, who died at Franklin Hospital from a fracture of the skull.

The other victims:

Arthur Wise, fractures of both legs, bruises and possible internal injuries.

Ernest Murphy, dislocated shoul-

SHOT DOWN IN RAID ON CAFE

Fatal Shooting Follows Fight in Victim's Store Over Sale of Liquor

Patrolman Daniel M. O'Connell of the City Point station, doing plain clothes duty, today shot Luigi Sckagliizzi dead in an ice cream parlor at No. 113 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown.

The shooting followed an attack on the officer, police say.

O'Connell claims the dead man beat him over the head with a stove crank or shaker.

Dressed in rough clothing, O'Connell went in to buy liquor. Outside were walking Sergeant Patrick Magner and Patrolman Breen.

They heard a shot. Entering the store they found the victim on the floor. O'Connell leaned weakly against a show case. Blood poured from his wounds.

"He tried to get me," the officer gasped.

Sckagliizzi, the store proprietor, a former pugilist, and widely known in the Charlestown district, was

LACK OF COAL DOUBLES DEATHS IN STATE

Attention of whoever is responsible for the present coal shortage is called to the fact:

That influenza and lobar pneumonia have practically doubled this Winter in Massachusetts as compared with last Winter.

During January of this year, when the coal shortage became so acute, the Bay State increase in number of cases reported and in number of deaths was terrific, compared with January of one year ago.

"Lack of coal is endangering the public health. There is far more grippe and lobar pneumonia in this State than at any time since the big epidemic of flu. Actual infection is in contact. But lack of coal helps destroy resistance, which is so much needed to throw off germs."

This warning came direct today from Dr. Bernard W. Carey. He is State Epidemiologist in the State Department of Health on Beacon Hill.

There are figures on record to

Belleau Wood Site Assured as U. S. Shrine in France

Washington, Feb. 13 (By International News Service).—Purchase of Bealleau Wood, where the Second American Division won immortal fame in the World War, and its consecration as an American shrine in France, is now assured.

The last $16,000 necessary to acquire the site has been subscribed.

The money will go to purchase the cemetery where many American soldiers are buried, and enough adjoining land to make a small park which will stand forever as a memorial.

STORMY TONIGHT AND TOMORROW

Considerable more snow is to fall before the present storm is over, according to Weatherman Smith, who says it will continue probably until late tomorrow.

Before the storm is over the snow may turn to rain, he believes.

The present precipitation is general throughout the country. The storm—either with rain or snow—extends almost across the continent.

SENATE VOTES FOR JANUARY INAUGURAL

Washington, Feb. 13.—The Norris amendment to the Federal Constitution eliminating the present session of an old Congress after election of a new Congress and changing the date of inauguration of President from March 4 to the third Monday in January was approved today by the Senate by a vote of 63 to 6. It now goes to the House. Approval there before adjournment of Congress is regarded as problematical.

KILLS WIFE, CUTS THROAT IN SAUGUS

Mrs. William Brown was shot and instantly killed at her home in Barrett street, Saugus, this noon by her husband, who then cut his own throat. Brown returned home to dinner. An argument arose. The police say he seized a shotgun and discharged it in his wife's face.

CARPENTERS' UNION REJECTS 11 ALIENS

Lawrence, Feb. 13.—The application of eleven aliens to become members of the Carpenters' Union was denied today by officials of Local No. 111. The constitution of the Carpenters' Union was recently revised and it now provides that all members must be American citizens. Union officials turned the names of the eleven aliens over to the Americanization committee of the American Legion for necessary action.

AUTO FATALITY ENDS COUNTRY CLUB PARTY

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12.—(By International News Service)—Benjamin S. Rucker, 26, is dead, and Miss Grace Cuyler of New York City is in a hospital in a critical condition as a result of an automobile accident early today. Miss Buckner, also of New York, escaped unhurt. The car overturned and Rucker was caught underneath and crushed. Another man who was with the party escaped uninjured. The party was returning from a social function at the Country Club.

MONTAGUE PROMISED WOMEN 1,000 P. C. RETURN ON INVESTMENTS

12 SECRET INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN ALLEGED $1,000,000 SWINDLE

some apartments he maintained on Dana street in Cambridge (in addition to his beautiful home at No. 6 Grace Wood Park, Cambridge) Mr. Montague was arraigned today before Judge Bishop in Suffolk Superior Court, on two indictments.

One had five counts one of larceny and four of receiving stolen money. The other indictment was of seven counts, conspiracy to steal.

He pleaded not guilty. District Attorney O'Brien told Judge Bishop that the amount of the swindle charges against Montague and his associates would exceed $3,000,000. Judge Bishop then fixed bail at $15,000.

With the same suave tone that he used in describing the potential fortunes made possible by investment in Inter City Trust, Montague asked permission to make a statement. This was granted. He began:

OFFERED 1,000 P. C. PROFIT.

"During the administration of District Attorney Saltonstall an indictment similar to this in Suffolk was returned against me in Middlesex. After investigation Mr. Saltonstall not pressed on condition that I remain in this vicinity. He said—

"This has no bearing on this case," Judge Bishop cut in.

One of the trimmed in the Inter City Trust gag was Mrs. Caroline E. C. Norris, of No. 657 Boylston street. She conducts a school for New Thought, whose cardinal principle of philosophy is that what is, is good.

It is a cardinal axiom in the confidence game that in order to interest a "sucker," the victim must have larceny in his own heart.

That was manifestly not the case with Mrs. Norris, who told a reporter of the American that one of the things which made her mistrust the investment was Montague's promise to pay a profit of a thousand per cent.

"I didn't like that at all," she told. "I told him frankly that any investment which would pay a profit of a thousand dollars was probably based on fraud, in some form or another.

CONVINCED BY HIS TALK.

"He started to go into further details about his real estate proposition, and he talked so convincingly, so earnestly, that before I knew it I had shown some interest. He said he had purchased options on and in various parts of the east, and that it was the intention of the company to cut the land up into lots and sell them.

"Thus, he said, the company would make a handsome profit on the deal before paying the original owners of the property their purchase price. In other words, he was working with their capital, but he needed more money to secure options, and that was why he was offering shares for sale.

"I told him I would take the matter under advisement. I went to see a friend of mine—Perry B. London, manager of the Copley square branch of the State Street Trust Company. I asked Mr. London about it. He said that Mr. Montague was a fine man of excellent business reputation, and that his proposition was a fine investment, and thoroughly business like in every way. He told me that if it were not against the policy of the bank to buy such shares, the bank would undoubtedly make such an investment.

"Thus reassured, I finally bought fifteen shares of the company at $12.50 a share. From that time on I was continually pestered by agents of the company. They came to me almost daily, setting forth glowing promises of the progress being made. Among these agents was a woman who was more persistent than the rest. In order to get rid of her, I finally bought another share of the stock.

"This was two years ago. Since then I have received seven quarterly dividend checks, each one being $4.50. Last September Mr. Montague came to me for further investment. He said the company was in need of money. He explained that a New York syndicate wanted to buy up all the stock that was still outstanding, but that in loyalty to those who had invested, the outstanding stock had been reserved for the shareholders.

PROMISED BIG RETURNS.

"He showed how these shareholders could make a lot of money by what he called a legitimate turnover. The syndicate, he said, was willing to pay par value for the stock—$50 a share. The stock was now offered to those who held shares at $40 a share. They could buy at that price, and within a few days turn over their holdings to the syndicate at $50 a share."

"That sounded reasonable, so I went to my bank. I had $1,267 in the bank at the time. That represented all the money I had in the world—my savings of a lifetime.

"I drew out $1,200 of my account and invested it in Inter-City Trust buying thirty shares at $40 a share. After my investment, I had left only $67. I couldn't help feeling uneasy, though, so I went to the bank again, and again I was reassured and told my investment was a safe one and a good one.

HOLDS NO REGRETS.

"The next thing I knew, a friend of mine told me she had been informed by the downtown office of the State Street Trust Company that the concern was a fake and that Mr. Montague was a swindler.

"I have no regrets. The transaction will hurt Mr. Montague more than it will hurt me. I am fortified by the philosophy of New Thought. I thought fortune had been destined to come to me. It turned out the other way. I have forgotten my investment. It is gone. I am a wiser woman."

The Charles Ponzi venture lies a smouldering in the grave, but its soul goes marching on.

Of a thousand women who had been duped, one who had become an agent of the outfit, brought about the downfall of Montague, alleged color domo of a gigantic swindling band.

In an amazingly short time the outfit had taken from its hundreds of ignorant victims—almost all women—their savings of a lifetime. Over $800,000 that grew into individual bank accounts by painstaking dimes and quarters were poured into this sieve. Of this sum perhaps $200,000 was invested, and about $100,000 was paid out in dividends a la Ponzi—from the successive sale of stock, not from earnings.

What became of the other half million?

The swindling scheme, of which Montague is alleged to be the directing genius, had for its slogan, "Tell it to the women." Women from all walks in life—business, politics, housewives, widows, heiresses, shop girls and chorus girls. It was a feminist movement. The promotors of Intercity Trust believed that Barnum included women in his famous birth-rate statistics.

The investigation has unearthed the fact, it is charged, that 75 of the slickest bunco men in America conducted a comprehensive "talk" campaign throughout New England. They are said to be the smoothest aggregation of "phoney stock" salesmen in the country. Many of these agents were recruited from the ranks of former German mark option sellers and the gang which infested Boston when the "allvers" swindle was at its peak.

MARRIAGE INTENTION "TOO FUNNY"

MISS HELEN LINNEHAN

Back Bay girl, who found it "too funny for words" to learn that "Bobbie" Poleon had filed intentions to marry her. Her mother adds that "Hobbis," also of the Back Bay, is a "love addict," becoming engaged to every girl that takes his fancy.

GIRL CALLS HER YOUNG SUITOR 'LOVE ADDICT'

Young Bob Poleon of No. 69 St. Germain street, Back Bay, has twenty-two years and a forthright way. He filed intentions at City Hall to wed Miss Helen Linnehan, same age as he, of No. 204 Hemenway street, Back Bay.

Nothing whatever stands in the way of Bob's marital plan, except:

Miss Linnehan says it is ridiculous.

Her mother says Bob shall not marry Helen, not if the mother knows it.

Bob is a bear for betrothals, according to Mrs. Linnehan; he didn't even take the formality of mentioning his marriage plans to Miss Linnehan.

Miss Linnehan, who is in the senior class in a Boston finishing school, is both perplexed and amused. Her mother is perplexed, but not so amused.

"He seems to have the peculiarity of getting engaged to every girl who pleases his fancy!" Mrs. Linnehan avowed.

"Sort of an engagement addict!"

"Exactly. All he has to do is ernest a girl a few times and he pops the question. In this case he didn't even do that. He went to City Hall and got a license to marry my daughter. But he will not marry Helen if I know it."

And in evidence supporting her theory that Bobbie is a bear for betrothals, the story of his affair with a pretty Weymouth girl is cited. It appears that on Sunday, February 4, the course of love went a bit rough and he received the Miss Evelyn Greely, daughter of a Weymouth dentist.

Miss Greeley declined to discuss Poleon and his marriage intentions. "I know nothing of his latest affairs," she declared.

Poleon is also reticent about both affairs of his heart.

But Miss Linnehan apparently is willing to laugh it off. Anyway, she says it's "too funny for words."

"I know him alright, but as for becoming his wife—" merry peals of girlish laughter. "And besides, I have my 'Jack'!"

MAN KILLED BY POLICEMAN

taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital. He was dead on arrival.

Questioned by Captain Michael Goff, O'Connel said: "I went in and asked for a drink and got it. I started to take it away and showed my badge. He leaped for me with the iron handle. He hit me over the head."

Overturned chairs and other signs of a fierce struggle substantiated O'Connell's story of the fight.

"The shot was accidental," he told Captain Goff. "I pulled my gun to stop him. It went off."

Nevertheless, superior officers of the department say, there will be an investigation.

Numerous complains have been received at the Charlestown police station against the ice cream parlor. Numerous drunks have been seen staggering out and women have been insulted before the doors, police say.

Frequent attempts have been made to trap Skaglizzi but until today he has always eluded the police.

The dead man was forty-five years old. He lived at No. 147 Main street Charlestown.

FIND 300 QUARTS OF RUM IN FISH BAGS

Gloucester, Feb. 13.—An urchin was closing up nine barrels when a police squad today descended upon the premises, said to be owned by William McDonald, and confiscated the barrels. In them they found fifty burlap bags of the type in which fish are shipped. In each they found six quarts of Old Crow whiskey, making a total of 300 quarts. The booze is believed to be part of a load left by a rum runner in the harbor recently.

CHILDREN LOCKED IN WITH DYING KIN

New York, Feb. 13.—Drawn by faint pounding on a locked door, police today burst into an East Side flat and found six-year-old David Gottfield and his four-year-old sister, Beatrice, cowering beside the bed of their dying grandmother. The children, orphaned, had been cared for by Mrs. Sallie Tacher until three days ago, when she was stricken with apoplexy. Since then they had gone without food in the fireless flat. Mrs. Thacher was removed to a hospital and the children were cared for.

WOMEN PROTEST ON BORDER "NIGHT LIFE"

El Centro, Cal., Feb. 13.—A request that the international border between Calexico, Cal., and Mexicali, Lower California, be closed at 6 p. m., instead of being kept open all day and night, has been sent to Secretary of State Hughes by the Federated Clubwomen of the Imperial Valley. The clubwomen protest that young American men and even high school boys are being corrupted by the "night life" of the Lower California capital.

der, possible internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

John Rosch, possible internal injuries, bruises of the legs.

Lester Troop, head gardener, burns of the face.

Warned by an ominous crackling and a rapidly growing fissure in the wall, the firemen attempted to flee, but were hampered by the heavy snow. They were caught on the outer edge.

Other walls crashed about the same time and for a while it was believed other firemen and some of the children had been caught.

DISCOVERED BY NURSE.

Two buildings, the nursery where the fire started and the primary school, were destroyed and the Mack dormitory where were fifty-three boys from ten to fourteen years was ablaze, but was saved, largely through the efforts of a bucket brigade formed by the oldest boys and employes.

The John J. Kimble Chapel was threatened and was heavily damaged by water. The loss is estimated at $60,000.

Miss Beatrice Dawes, night nurse, was feeding four infants, just a few weeks old, when smoke burst from the woodwork near the chimney. Summoning Miss Beatrice Moses and Mrs. Julia Cooley, other nurses, she started carrying out the twelve babies in that department.

The three nurses, with other help, that arrived, then rescued thirteen little ones, ranging in age from one to two years, from another floor and later thirty-five more children, four to eight years, who were on the fourth and top floor.

HAMPERED BY SNOW.

These youngsters were all taken to the Mack dormitory where they were sheltered until the roof of that building caught and then they were led and carried to Creighton Hall where are quartered thirty-five girls and to John Taylor House where are the older boys.

The flames spread the length of the nursery with great rapidity. Before the arrival of fire apparatus from Franklin, which was delayed by the heavy snow, it was apparent that nothing could save either this building or the primary school nearest by.

For a time it was feared the Mack dormitory and the chapel could not be saved and that other houses and dormitories would be burned. Blinding snow added to the difficulties of the fire fighters.

WEBSTER HOMESTEAD.

Rev. Walter Malvern, superintendent of the institution, and his wife helped both in the rescue work and in extinguishing the fire.

As soon as the children were safe in other buildings Mrs. Malvern and Mrs. Cooley, the head nurse, began caring for those who had suffered from exposure, while the superintendent and Lester Troop directed the playing of water buckets on the blazing roof of Mack dormitory.

It was while doing this that Troop was burned. He paid no heed to his injuries.

How to Make Rain Please Don't Laugh The Thing May Come Nothing Is Impossible

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

SHALL WE ever make the rain fall? Undoubtedly. Man can do anything that he can imagine and clearly plan. We unite oceans, carry streams over mountains and under rivers, irrigate deserts. There is no reason why we shouldn't eventually bring the water down from the skies, where it often goes entirely to waste in clouds driven out to sea.

SOME TIME ago one man experimented with liquid air from a balloon, thinking that making the clouds cold might cause the rain to fall.

Now Professor Bancroft, of Cornell, experimenting with "electric sand," thinks it can be used to dissipate fogs above cities, harbors, flying fields, etc.

A VERY timid man is not willing to endure laughter, and this writer is willing to admit that for twenty years he has discussed with others, including his patent attorney, the possibility of causing rainfall.

Smile if you will, but this is the plan evolved by your humble servant and roughly presented, with all valuable rights reserved:

USE FLYING machines of different types, preferably dirigibles, able to carry many tons. As they pass through or above the clouds, scatter in the rear some very finely powdered, thoroughly dried hydrophilous substance. Ordinary lime, such as farmers put on their fields, reduced to a fine powder, might answer the purpose.

THE PROPELLERS of the flying machines might do the scattering of the dust, which could be expelled through a wide mouthed vent from a container at a very low temperature, if that be desired. Each microscopic particle of lime, with its great affinity for water, would condense, hold, and carry down with it many times its own weight of water. One ton of lime thus scattered in the upper atmosphere, would, theoretically, bring down many tons of water in gentle rain. The lime would be good for the ground.

THE ACTUAL amount of water captured and brought down by the powdered hydrophilous material thus scattered, might prove to be only a start, a small part of the total result. Every drop of captured moisture would take down from the cloud a certain amount of heat. It is conceivable that the consequent refrigeration might produce natural rainfall. The water above is held in a delicate balance.

YOU ARE aware that no drop of rain ever falls to the earth without a minute particle of dust in the centre of each drop. If there were no dust in the atmosphere above, there would never be any rainfall. The clouds would drift on, never coming down until they struck a mountain side, condensed and poured down there.

THE FACT that every drop of rain must have its central dust speck was first called to this writer's attention in a book by Alfred Russell Wallace, "The Wonderful Century," read some twenty odd years ago. Since that time the writer has planned vaguely to supply the clouds with the dust that, under certain circumstances, may be lacking.

HEAVY RAINFALLS after artillery battles have been due, perhaps, to the dust of powder, fired into the air from guns and mortars of high elevation. Certain experimenters, mistaking the cause, imagined that a loud noise or explosion could produce rain. Experiments along those lines were tried, without results, naturally.

BEFORE THE development of the flying machine there was no practical way of getting enough dust up among the clouds. Now the way is open. Perhaps Mr. Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, who can keep his face straight over queer propositions, will have experiments made and establish their value or foolishness.

It would not cost anything but

PEGGY GAVE DOOR KEY TO SPAULDING

EVANS SPAULDING

Boston man had breakfast with Peggy Hopkins for months, her maid testified in the divorce suit in which Spaulding was named as corespondent by Stanley Joyce, husband No. 3, of the actress

Evans Spaulding of Boston, Harvard '15, and former captain of marines, was named as co-respondent by Stanley Joyce in his divorce bill against Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

Mrs. Mary Evans Spaulding of Manchester-by-the-Sea, mother of the dashing young man who is now steaming London-wards, told the Boston American that she exercised every effort to keep her good-looking son out of the toils of "that boa-constructor." But she neglected to mention the suit.

And she did not say she had chased her son all over Europe, joining him in Paris at a time when Peggy was there, and keeping him within the maternal eye at all times.

WAS PEGGY'S "SWEETIE."

And she did not say that Evans was mentioned in the Joyce divorce bill as having been guilty of misconduct with Peggy from December, 1920, until March, 1921, in New York, Atlantic City and Palm Beach.

Nor did she say that young Spaulding was not only one of Peggy's numerous "sweeties," but her unwilling sparring partner in impromptu boxing matches in Peggy's apartment at No. 423 Park avenue, New York.

Young Spaulding himself admitted that on one occasion, when dancing with Peggy at the Montmartre in New York, she suddenly stopped and started to make a Carpentier out of him. She slapped him till he was groggy, he admitted. But he said nothing of further bouts in the privacy of Peggy's beautiful apartment on Park avenue.

As for Peggy, she stamped an angry foot in that very apartment to in the school or in St. John's Church, adjoining the convent, preparing for the forty hours' devotion.

PRIEST TELLS HOW NUN WAS KIDNAPED

Sister Cecilia had remained in the convent to receive several of her private music pupils. When she did not appear in the music room at her scheduled time, the children waited. Then it developed that the sister was missing.

Part of her rosary girdle, broken in the struggle with her kidnapers was found on the floor and the atmosphere was permeated with a peculiar odor that was unmistakably a drug.

MEMORY A BLANK.

From what we have been able to glean from the unfortunate sister, who remembers nothing from the time a vial was thrust under her nose until she regained consciousness in Baltimore, the kidnapers undoubtedly spirited her away for ransom.

It is forty-six miles to Baltimore by road and it was along about 6 or 7 o' clock last evening that she recovered there. The room was squalid and bare.

In an adjoining room she could hear several persons, unquestionably foreigners, talking in excited and quarrelsome tones as to just how much ransom they would demand for her return to the convent.

One of the men seemed to feel that $500 should satisfy them for their day's work. But the others were insistent that they should hold out for a bigger price.

A faint light filtered through the crevices of the door of the adjoining room. Sister Cecilia, her brain befuddled from the drug that had been administered to her, didn't have the faintest idea where she was.

WAS HELPLESS.

She dimly recalled the sudden entrance of the two rough-looking men in the convent. She recalled that she tried to scream, but her cries were stifled by one of the men who clapped his hand over her mouth. She continued to struggle with all the strength at her command, and then she recalled how one of the men put a bottle to her nose. Try as she would, she could not fight off the drowsiness and helplessness that seized her.

Groping around the darkened room, she came upon a man's coat hanging on the wall. She had been stripped of her habit and was clad only in her underclothing.

Donning the overcoat, she stealthily crept through a window and staggered through the street.

A policeman encountered her and she asked him to direct her to the convent. She was amazed when the policeman told her she was in Baltimore. Sister Cecilia didn't have enough money with her to take a taxi to Frederick and the police communicated with me by telephone. We had her brought back in an automobile and she fainted as they carried her into the convent.

TAXI DRIVER HELD.

At my request a taxi driver who wanted to take her back to the convent for $30 was held by the police, but I don't believe he was implicated in the kidnaping.

Sister Cecilia upon her arrival was in no condition to give a clear, coherent story of the experience she had undergone. She is now in a serious condition and under the care of a doctor and sister nurses.

Neither she nor anyone in the convent has the slightest idea who kidnapers are. From what we could glean from Sister Cecilia she noticed two suspicious men and a woman loitering in front of the convent, but she said she paid no attention to them.

Why anyone would want to kidnap a holy sister is beyond me. Undoubtedly it was for ransom, and I dare say the demand would be made today if Sister Cecilia had not escaped.

However, we intend to probe this affair to the very bottom, and nothing will be left undone to apprehend them.

Sister Cecilia is a holy woman who has devoted her life to God and it was through Him that she is safe with us.

'Adonis' Cop Annoyed by Women

PURSUED HIM BY PHONE

Anderson Had Landlady Tell Fair Admirers He Was Not at Home

Possessing charms irresistible to women is not all it's cracked up to be, according to the testimony of "Teddy" Anderson, Boston's handsomest traffic policeman, who is defending Norah Stevens' $10,000 heart balm suit.

"There were always a lot of girls who bothered me to death by calling me on the telephone all hours, day and night. I used to tell my landlady to say I wasn't at home, because it was too much trouble to walk to the phone to talk with them," Teddy said with a bland smile on his handsome Scandinavian face.

NORAH ONE OF MANY.

"Norah Stevens was only one of the many who bothered me. I thought no more of her annoying me than any of the rest of them."

Norah's principal asset, according to the traffic policeman, was her superb cooking, and the fact that she always kept open house in the homes of the prominent Back Bay families where she was employed for her culinary prowess.

"I used to be hungry after standing all day at the corner of Winter and Tremont streets, and Norah always had a good feed ready, dropped in often, and, of course, I fooled with her, just as I always fool with girls. I meant nothing by it," "Teddy" explained.

SHE HELD UP TRAFFIC.

The handsome officer declared that he dropped his acquaintance with the comely cook because she had the "gall to invite him to visit her in Gardiner, Mass." He further elucidated by saying that he expected his lady friends to go half-way in their friendships with him, and Gardiner seemed a long way off.

Traffic was held up on Winter street one day, he asserted, while the scorned Norah demanded a full explanation of his attitude towards her.

"I never take girls seriously. I never took any woman seriously except my dear mother. If they believe I mean what I say when I'm only fooling with them, that isn't my fault," he said on the stand.

PLANT LOSES IN $4,250 SUIT

E. L. Hollander of this city, a son of L. P. Hollander, the merchant, has obtained a $4,250 verdict against Thomas G. Plant, the millionaire shoe manufacturer of Jamaica Plain, in Federal Court at Concord, N. H., on grounds of violation of contract.

Through the testimony was revealed plans of Mr. Plant to build an exclusive millionaire's golf club at Moultonboro, N. H.

Members were supposed to answer thirty-nine requirements and then, if found desirable, buy a share of stock at $6,000 and pay annual dues of $1,000. The organization was to be known as the Bald Peak Golf Club.

Mr. Plant had plans for a beautiful club house and golf course that would equal, if not excel, any in the country. There were to be tennis courts, swimming pools and other advantages.

The plaintiff alleged that he had a contract to run from March 14, 1922, to November 1, 1922 and that his job was to obtain members. He declared that Plant broke the contract on July 5, 1922, and the amount he sued for was balance of salary and office rental in New York.

GERRY TELLING ABOUT LOU

GERALDINE FARRAR AS A WITNESS

GERRY ON STAND ATTACKED BY STAGE FRIGHT

New York, Feb. 13.—Geraldine, muffled to the eyes in fur—Geraldine, silent and scornful—Geraldine, seeking anxiously to avoid publicity!

This was the remarkable revelation of the Farrar that passed through Grand Central Terminal at the close of the brief hearing in the suit for divorce which she is waging against Lou Tellegen, her actor-husband.

For those who have seen the gleaming back of the Geraldine in "Tosca," for those who have sighed over the splendor of the throat and chest of "Zara," for those who have heard the plaintive, bewitching melody of "Butterfly"—

To them, Geraldine certainly did not seem like the same girl. The fervid Farrar appeared actually to suffer from stage-fright on this, her debut, as a witness in her own divorce drama.

HAD HER GALOSHES.

With Alvin Untermyer to protect her legally, and a private detective to guard her physically, the prima donna appeared fifteen minutes before the curtain—before the hearing was called to order by Referee Thomas H. Mahony.

Galoshes covered her pumps and the Queen of the Gerry Flappers wore them buckled snuggly over her slender ankles in defiance of flapper fashion.

Only the Referee, the stenographer, Mr. Untermyer, Arthur D. Schwartz, attorney for Lou Tellegen, and the newspapermen were present.

With the Referee in the chair, at the head of the table, Miss Farrar took the oath required of witnesses on a little Bible. Then Mr. Untermyer put a series of twelve questions to her. She answered every one with a monosyllabic affirmative or negative. Rarely was her voice raised above a monotone.

OFFENSES NOT CONDONED.

She asserted that she had verified personally the complaint for divorce which her attorneys filed charging Lou Tellegen with statutory offenses. She denied she ever had condoned any of these offenses, and denied that any other divorce litigation was now pending.

But she was careful to go into no details of the various episodes charged against Lou.

Some of the questions and answers were:

Q. Were any of the acts alleged in the complaint committed by your consent, connivance, privity or procurement? A. No.

NO TELLEGEN DEFENCE.

Q. Have five years elapsed since the discovery by you of the commission of any of the charges alleged in the complaint? A. No.

Q. Is there any action for divorce other than this action pending between yourself and Lou Tellegen? A. No.

Mr. Schwartz, Tellegen's counsel, was restrained only by the insistence of his client, who has declined absolutely to fight the singer's suit. After the proceeding Mr. Schwartz remarked:

"We were all ready to fight this thing, and if we could have gone ahead Miss Farrar would have been on the stand sixteen hours instead of sixteen minutes. We have a stack of papers that high" (and he measured the space of a yard with his hands), "but Lou Tellegen does not want to fight this case and that ties our hands, of course."

Friends of the romantic actor persisted in circulating reports during the hearing that there was a possibility a reconciliation would ultimately be effected between the parted couple, but all the visual evidence was directly to the contrary.

of the paragraphs requires the committee to investigate the salaries and expenses of officers and employes of the fuel administration and also to ascertain if any of them are directly or indirectly connected with the coal business.

In view of the seriousness of the coal situation it is considered likely that prompt action will be taken on the order and that there will be little delay in having it enacted into law should it be favorably reported from the committee.

The order provides for a sweeping investigation into:

1—The methods and practices of the administration.

2—What the administration has done, if anything, to protect the public from suffering caused by the coal shortage and whether it has failed to take adequate steps to that end.

3—What the administration has done, if anything, to protect the public from profiteering in prices of coal.

4—Whether the administration is fully equipped with legal power and whether it is legally constituted.

5—The salary and expenses of officers, members and employes of the administration; whether any of them derive incomes from persons, corporations or organizations interested in the coal trade and whether any officer, member or employe of the administration is directly or indirectly connected with the coal business.

6—Any and all matters which the committee may deem pertinent to acquaint the public with the success or failure of the administration to protect the public interests in the present emergency.

The order also provides that headquarters shall be established in the State House and the committee shall have authority to hold public hearings and summon persons, books and documents necessary for its investigation.

The committee will report its findings and recommendations to the General Court not later than March 15.

Paris, Feb. 13. (By International News Service).—The Franco-Belgian commission today took over complete control of the Ruhr and Rhineland railways to insure coal deliveries, said a Brussels dispatch to L'Intransigeant. The German railway workers were discharged.

The trains will be manned and guarded by French and Belgian soldiers. A German hostage will be placed in each locomotive as a safeguard against sabotage by the Germans.

French Draw Ring of Bayonets Around Ruhr

Mulheim, Feb. 13 (By International News Service).—A Franco-Belgian policy of blood and iron, enforced by bayonets, is in full swing in the occupied Rhineland today.

The fifth week of the Ruhr occupation has been marked by an all-round tightening of French military rule. Bayonets in the background proved futile. The French now are trying the cold steel on the recalcitrants.

Not only are they trying, but the French are using the bayonet with terrible results. In Essen alone a dozen or more men are nursing most painful stabs, inflicted because the Germans did not move fast enough when ordered to do so.

The mood of the Ruhr population has changed from passive resistance to red-hot fury, which threatens now to assume a really aggressive character.

German Policeman Slain by French

Paris, Feb. 13. (By the Associated Press).—A German policeman was killed and two French gendarmes were wounded in yesterday's affair at Gelsenkirchen, in the Ruhr, says the French official version of the incident.

The Foreign Office says the gendarmes were on the way to the Mayor's office in Gelsenkirchen with a letter when their car was stopped by a policeman, who threatened them with a revolver. The gendarmes fired on the policeman, who fell. Thereupon six policemen from a nearby post hurried up and fired on the gendarmes, wounding one in the arm and the other in the liver.

RUMOR VALENTINO IS TO PLAY BEN HUR

New York, Feb. 13.—Perhaps Rodolph Valentino, the sheik of the films, may be planning a speedy return to the movies but if such is the case he is keeping it secret from his legal adviser, Arthur Butler Graham, who is now busily engaged trying to straighten out the star's contract tangles with Famous Players-Lasky firm. Mr. Graham avers that Rodolph will continue to fill dance contracts for some time to come. But there are persistent rumors that he will follow June Mathis soon to Goldwyn to play the role of Ben Hur.

LACK OF COAL DOUBLES FLU DEATHS IN BAY STATE

WARNS OF DANGER TO PUBLIC

Grippe, Pneumonia and Influenza Cases Far Ahead of Last Year in Number

back up the assertions of State-wide increase in cases of deaths from pneumonia and influenza this January, compared with last. Here are the reports of cases reported and deaths throughout the State during these months:

	Influenza Cases Re'ted	De'ths Re'ted	Pneu'nia Cases Re'ted	De'ths
Jan. 1923...	135	47	570	*264
Jan. 1922 .	611	65	906	*332

*To date, probably will reach 400.

6511 CASES THIS YEAR.

Study those figures. There were 795 cases of influenza and lobar pneumonia reported in the State in January, 1922. This number jumped in January, 1923, to 1,511 cases reported.

January, 1922, had 211 deaths in this State from the two diseases. The number of deaths from those diseases in January, 1923, is already listed up to 397 and is expected by Dr. Carey to run about seventy more.

By returns already in from around the State the number of deaths for this January is eighty-six more than during the preceding January. How many of these eighty-six deaths can be traced directly to the coal shortage?

Dr. Carey spoke about the coal shortage and its menace without minding matters. He said:

"Lack of coal is endangering the public health. It is a predisposing factor to all forms of disease. Coal is most important for those people whose resistance to disease is easily lowered and who are thus rendered more susceptible.

"The boundary line between health and disease is resistance. Resistance is that thing which keeps one well and the lack of it allows the germs to destroy good health.

"Over work, worry, disappointment and lack of coal are among the things which break down the normal man and render him subject to disease.

CITES TYPICAL CASE.

"For instance, John Jones works in a heated shop all day. When he goes to his home at night, which is chilled by lack of heat, he needs clothing, or energy, or something else to overcome it. If he hasn't got coal to provide normal heat, his resistance to disease is naturally going to break down.

"You walk along the street inhaling all kinds of germs, and if you haven't got that resistance you're going to be ill."

"The grippe is around in a mild form, but there is far more grippe and lobar pneumonia in the State than at any time since the big epidemic of '18."

"The actual infection is in contact, but the lack of coal in this hard Winter helps destroy that resistance, which is so much needed to throw off the germs.

"This increase in gripps and lobar pneumonia is not confined to any one section of the State, but is quite general."

Dr. Carey then presented figures from a few cities to show the jumps from January, 1922, and January, 1923, in cases reported.

ALL SHOW INCREASE.

Cities	Cases Reported Jan. 1922	Jan. 1923

Lawrence has already reported that lack of coal has killed more than seventy-five persons in the textile city in forty days.

In forty days of this year there have been 106 deaths from pneumonia, compared with thirty-one deaths there in the same forty days of last year.

HITS PROVIDENCE.

William P. Hale, recorder of Lawrence Board of Health, says:

"This terrible scourge is directly traceable to lack of coal."

Providence, R. I., shows an increase in pneumonia deaths in January of this year compared with January of last year and an alarming start on pneumonia fatalities for February.

Providence statistics on influenza and pneumonia deaths for the two Januaries are:

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Tells How to Darken Gray Hair with Barbo Compound

Mrs. M. D. Gilleepie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 2 ounces of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Jad Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Recovery From Influenza Hastened by

PE-RU-NA

Mr. C. A. Allen, R. R. No. 2, Bonsefant, Iowa, gives testimony to the healing power of Pe-ru-na. Influenza left him much run down in health with catarrh of the nose, throat and bronichal tubes punctuated with attacks of asthma. He writes:

"While recovering from the Influenza I was so weak I could not gain any strength for two months. The latter part of the winter, I bought six bottles of Pe-ru-na and began taking it. My weight increased to 175 pounds, the most I ever weighed.

My usual winter weight is 153. If you can use this letter for any good, you are perfectly welcome."

Such evidence cannot fail to convince the rankest unbeliever of the merits of Pe-ru-na.

WORKING GIRLS IN BOSTON FIGHTING HUNGER ON LOW PAY

Can the average working girl of Boston support herself in "health and decency" on less than $15 a week?

Thousands of women wage earners in New York State cannot, according to a statement just issued by the joint legislative conference after a State-wide survey of wages and conditions.

Then how about Boston?

IMPOSSIBLE TASK.

Miss Maude Foley, president of the Woman's Trade Union League, and herself a worker who has risen from the ranks, says that it is impossible for a girl to live in any standard of decency under $18 a week.

Yet in every large industry where women are employed in Massachusetts the minimum wage for the average worker is $15 or under. Thousands earn considerably less.

Miss Foley gives the statistics coming from the State Board of Labor, for the minimum wages paid.

Twelve dollars and a half is the minimum for the candy workers, $18.89 for the brush workers $13.75 for men's clothing workers—that includes overalls, shirts, neckties, etc. —$14 for ladies' coats and dress workers, and $15, the highest average wage, for the men's suits and overcoat workers.

HELP THEIR FAMILY.

"It makes no difference whether a girl lives at home or independently," Miss Foley explained. "She pays board just the same. I know almost no working girls who do not contribute to the support of their families."

Here is the budget made out for the girl who earns from $13 to $15 a week:

Board and room, $5; lunches, $2.10; carfares, $1.20; total $8.30.

This means that the girl who makes $12.50 a week has, over her absolute necessities, just $5 a week, or $260 a year, to spend for clothing, self-improvement and recreation.

LIVE LIKE PIGS.

"Girls can't live on that," said Miss Foley. "Pigs can grub along without anything to make life worth living. That's why they are pigs. Women are human beings, and they can't."

"Thousands of girls in Boston are breaking the law which says a person need work only forty-eight hours a week to earn a living wage. These girls, who give all their strength, and vitality to hard manual labor for eight hours a day, are forced, when night comes, to take jobs in theatres as ushers, or in restaurants as cashiers and waitresses, to make a few dollars extra, so that they can have enough food to eat and enough clothes to cover them.

Mrs. Mary Thompson, a prominent member of the executive committee of the league, explained what she called the "ridiculous fallacy" of the minimum wage system.

MUST DRESS WELL.

"There is one factory near Boston, that is nationally known, that pays its girls an average of $10.89 a week," she says. "I know that from personal experience. And yet if you ask to see the books of the firm, you will not find that wage listed. You will be shown the pay of the forewomen, and perhaps two dozen expert skilled workers, who, of course, earn very much more than that.

PEGGY GAVE KEY TO SPAULDING

day, bruising the hair of a black bear rug, and denied she had visited Evans in his mother's suite at the Copley-Plaza in Boston shortly before he sailed for Europe.

"I was in Boston last week on business," she said. "I didn't know the Spauldings were in town, and if I had known I wouldn't have called on them. Only people like that would say anything of the sort about me. It's just the malice of that boy's mother."

Peggy's statement gives the lie direct to the aristocratic Mrs. Spaulding, who told the American how Peggy had wished herself on her and her son, quite uninvited. The fact that Peggy had dined with young Evans and his mother was related also by the youth, who took occasion to deny that Peggy would ever become Mrs. Spaulding, for the reason that she was engaged to marry another man—a wealthy New Yorker.

KNEW HE WAS HEIR.

"She wouldn't marry me," Evans told an American reporter. "I haven't got money enough."

Nevertheless Peggy knew that Evans was heir to a considerable fortune, or thought he was, and discussed his expectations with him.

According to an informant of the Boston American, Peggy, on one occasion in her New York apartment, duplicated her performance of the Montmartre. In the dance place the trouble started when Evans, permitting his eyes to stray from Peggy's own golden head, looked at another girl with too friendly a smile.

On the second occasion Peggy openly accused him of being fond of another woman. He denied it. She trounced him to a finish. For a week Spaulding nursed bruises, scratches and abrasions. Among the things Peggy threw at him was a vase of the Shang dynasty and two shaded table lamps made of hard Revere pottery.

HAD KEY TO FLAT.

That Peggy and Evans frequently fought in Peggy's apartments was related by Hannah Nordstrom, Peggy's maid, during the divorce hearing before Judge Sabath in Chicago.

Frequently, Hannah said, she admitted Evans to Miss Hopkins' apartment at midnight and later, and in the morning served breakfast for two. Later she supplied him with a key, so that he could come in without ringing.

"I had no double breakfasts to serve after December, 1920," Hannah said naively. "She was mad on him after that. I don't know what it was, but believe me, there was some trouble. He was always scratched up, just like Mr. Joyce used to be."

The latter statement recalls the testimony of Mr. Joyce that Peggy, in "frequent sallies of passion," blackened his eyes and scratched his face. Hannah added:

CALLS HIM "SILLY CALF."

"Peggy said that Mr. Spaulding did not have so much money, but that when his mother died he would get some millions maybe."

Peggy was asked whether or not she had rigged up a radio set in her apartment to communicate with Evans on the steamer as he sailed the ocean blue.

"Communicate with him by radio?" she said. "Not unless I could throw one at him. Silly calf!

"As for his mother, she's just a malicious old thing, and I'm too busy to handy words with her."

Slayer's Captor

MRS. CATHERINE URIBE

The former follies' dancer claims to have located and to hold captive in Mexico, Clara Phillips, the "hammer slayer." She seeks to bargain for the release of her husband and brother, held in Los Angeles on auto theft charges.

CLARA PHILLIPS INFORMER IS SORRY

Los Angeles, Feb. 13 (By International News Bureau).—Mrs. Catherine Uribe, one-time "Follies" beauty, who is said to be holding Clara Phillips, escaped hammer murderess, captive, showed today she was partly sorry for "turning up" "Little Phil" Alguin, alleged police murderer, by buying him $5 worth of food at a lunch counter when he arrived here.

Mrs. Uribe was instrumental in having Alguin deported from Mexico to answer a charge of murdering a Los Angeles detective. She hoped to have her own imprisoned husband freed.

"I'm sorry, Phil," she said, arranging the food before him and opening a napkin for him. "that you're here because of me. But it was either you or fourteen years in prison for my husband, and brother-in-law if they were convicted."

Alguin only glanced at her and nodded, but made no comment. After she had gone his chivalry forsook him and he cursed her husband, saying bitterly:

"I guess she doesn't realize she is buying her husband his freedom with my life."

101 Years Old, Says Tobacco Gives Him Long Life

Palmer, Feb. 13.—Louis Lerelis rose at 6 a. m. today, shaved himself with a razor of the vintage of 1849, and then, filling his pipe with cut plug, sat down to reminiscence. As today is Louis' 101st birthday, he naturally had a lot to talk about.

Among other things, he declared that without his pipe and tobacco he would have been dead and buried years ago. As it is now he expects to live another score years. Congratulations were in order from two daughters, three sons, thirty-five grandchildren and eight-five great grandchildren.

PLOT TO FREE 30 IN LIMERICK JAIL FOILED

Dublin, Feb. 13.—Six women and a man named Forde, arrested at Limerick, are reported to have attempted to obtain the release of thirty prisoners from the jail there.

They bribed the sentry to allow the prisoners to escape over the wall. This he agreed to do, but soldiers in disguise came over instead and captured the waiting plotters.

A document signed by Deputy Maloney, of Liam Deasy's staff, asserting that the morale of the Republicans is broken, is said to have been found on Forde.

GEORGIA BEAUTY SUES SPANISH CONSUL, PRINCE OF WOOERS

BRUTALITY CHARGES BY GIRL

Declares His Love Grew Cold, and He Threw Her Out of His Apartment

New York, Feb. 13.—Miss Lucille Whitehurst, blooming young peach from the world-famous Georgia orchard of feminine beauty, accuses Mariano Vida, Spanish vice-consul here and scion of hidalgos of old Spain, of winning her Southern love with Judas kisses, as she terms them.

She was "Mariano's Treasure," she asserts; he was a very prince of wooers.

But she alleges that, when his love grew cold, he struck her, knocked her down and hurled her from his apartment so violently that her spine was injured.

In answer to her charges of assault Vidal was directed to appear at the office of Assistant District Attorney Alexander Lehman in the Criminal Courts Building today.

APPEAL TO HUGHES.

His diplomatic position has raised a nice question of the possibility of his being prosecuted here. But Miss Whitehurst's attorney says he will take the matter right up to Secretary of State Hughes if necessary.

Miss Whitehurst says she does not seek money but wishes to warn other American girls against a Spanish Don who is trading on the great vogue of Rodolph Valentino, as the Georgia beauty expresses it.

Vidal has hinted at a counter-charge against Miss Whitehurst. But she says:

"He cannot frighten me now. His power over me is gone. I can stand battle him in court with no tremor of emotion. My love is dead. It runs a great divide separates me from the time when he thrilled me with his wonderful lovemaking."

LOVE MISSIVES.

Letters the girl wrote to Vidal voice that "wonderful love." Extracts from these missives are:

"Woman loves' man only when she can look up to him. I worshipped you always, regarding your superior intellect, but little did I dream you would one day use it to crush me. You will come to know in the end you have not been justified in your attitude to me. It seems hard to say, after all that has passed, that perhaps we will never meet again.

"You have hurt me, I feel now, beyond repair. . . . I suppose you thought you could buy this separation, but there are times when money is valueless. I hold my love too sacred to desecrate it by money.

"JUDAS KISS."

Society Dances Tonight Will End at Midnight, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

IF the clever imparters of "jazz" are going to play "At 3 O'Clock in the morning, they'll have to do so before midnight. Which applies not only to the much-heralded Cinderella dance, taking place tonight at the Hotel Somerset, but also to the dance which Mrs. Herman Parker is giving in the smaller ballroom of the Somerset at the same time.

Most everyone, of course, knows about the Cinderella dance—how it was instigated through a number of prominent society folk who thought that a dance which began at 9:30 and stopped at midnight would be not only a novelty, but rather a refreshing sort of pleasure. The idea caught on with no little enthusiasm, and now society can find out for itself how well they would like the dances of "grandma's day." I'll warrant that some of the "Cinderellas" and their "Prince Charmings" are going to find the change not so jolly after all.

The dance which Mrs. Herman Parker of No. 60 Commonwealth avenue is giving in the small ballroom of the Somerset tonight is in honor of her debutante niece, Miss Elizabeth Percival, daughter of the David C. Percivals, also of Commonwealth avenue. Because Ash Wednesday is tomorrow, I understand that this affair also will stop at midnight. A rather startling innovation for the buds and their cavaliers, to say the least. As a rule they're just beginning to arrive at the dances around midnight.

FROM London comes the news that Mrs. Augustus Rantoul of Boston has taken an apartment at Ashley Gardens.

Speaking of Americans in England, Mrs. Richard Wheatland of Beacon street and Topsfield plans to spend the Spring in Oxford with her daughter, Miss Lucia Wheatland. They are going over to be near the latter's fiance, John Farquhar Fulton, who's studying at Magdalen College, Oxford. The engagement of the young people was announced around New Year's, while Mr. Fulton—he's the son of Dr. and Mrs. John F. Fulton of St. Paul, Minn., and a Harvard graduate—was spending the holidays with the Wheatlands at their country home in Topsfield.

Another American at present studying in England is Miss Mary Vinton Murray, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Marlboro street. Miss Murray also came over from England to spend the holidays here. Her younger sister, Miss Rosamond Murray, was presented to society this season.

MRS. FRANKLIN W. HOBBS is giving a luncheon today at her home on Beacon street, when the members of the board of governors of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts are invited to meet Mrs. Medill McCormick, member of the National Republican Committee.

Later in the day Mrs. Gerald Bramwell is giving a tea in honor of Mrs. McCormick at her home on Commonwealth avenue. Among the pourers are such distinguished matrons as Mesdames F. Lothrop Ames, Charles P. Curtis, George Richmond Fearing and Franklin Hobbs.

FREDERICK R. SEARS, JR., of Boston was on the committee in charge of the first dinner dance of the season, held the other night by the Samedi Soir Club at the Palm Beach Country Club. Also on the committee was Harold S. Vanderbilt of the North Shore's Summer colony. These Samedi Soir dinner dances are among the most popular entertainments of their kind at the Florida resort, about 150 dining there on the opening night, and many others arriving later from dinners given at the clubs and villas.

contentment and happiness in my heart such as I had not felt in a long time. I seemed at least to understand you and the kind of life you wanted to live, and I made up my mind to help you in your happiness by being just the sort of little girl you wanted me to be.

"But little did I dream when you kissed me good-by it was a Judas kiss. That is what hurts, Mariano. You always made me feel that you cared a great deal for me. It never mattered if we were on speaking terms. I never ceased to love you in the noblest way.

"I wonder if you have really understood me. You have been, oh, so sweet and lovable to me many times. I want you to feel and know those times will live in my memory forever. Through this letter you will hear from me for the last time. I wish you through life all the happiness you deserve."

PLEADED FOR MEETING.

Miss Whitehurst wrote to Vidal on his birthday:

"I am not concerned with the troubles or failures of the past and the future will never be with us, so I pray, dear Mariano, may you be happy today, your birthday.

"May the gods give the new year brightness with prosperous cheer. In time, this day will pass like all other days. I wonder, don't you sometimes think of 'Mariano's Treasure'? I would love to see you, but not if you don't want to. Oh! if you would some time I would not believe my eyes."

TURK COUNCIL TO MEET AT SMYRNA

London, Feb. 13 (By International News Service).—An important Turkish military and state council has been summoned at Smyrna, said a dispatch from Constantinople this afternoon. Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation in the Lausanne peace conference, announced he would leave for Smyrna at once instead of going to Angora, as he originally planned.

It is understood Mustapha Kemal Pasha, head of the Turkish government, summoned the parley at Smyrna instead of Angora to get away from the Turkish extremists, who are crying for war against the allies.

Moderate Turks were quoted by Constantinople advices as saying that both Kemal and Ismet favor acceptance of the Lausanne treaty with slight changes, knowing that Turkey would stand no show in war.

UNCLE SAM UNABLE TO PAY REWARDS

Washington, Feb. 13.—Although the Treasury describes the efforts of civilians to aid in the capture of law violators as commendable, there is no way in which it can remunerate those who extend such assistance for expenditures incurred, according to a ruling today by the Comptroller-General.

The decision was based on a claim by a drug company in Valdosta, Ga., which had spent $3.45 in telephone tolls to advise the narcotic agent at Atlanta of the whereabouts of an alleged violator. The drug company got nothing for its act.

a few tons of lime, for which the writer will pay, if Mr. Wilson will provide the carrying machines.

ONE HUNDRED to one that there is nothing in it, you say. Very reasonable odds, probably. Nevertheless, any useful thing is worth trying.

If government flying machines, on their errands for the Post-office and other departments, could, in time of drought, distribute lime and rain as they sailed over the thirsty fields, that would suit the farmers.

MEN NEVER know what they can do until they try. To talk of taking lime up into the sky to bring down rain may sound supremely foolish now. Not so long ago the idea of flying up into the clouds at all was called a dream.

A fleet of flying machines big enough to carry all the mails and thoroughly protect the country might earn its keep, a hundred times over, by fighting drought, while waiting for a human enemy.

NOW FLYING machines are used to spy out forest fires. If this idea, submitted with full realisation of the doubtfulness of its value, should prove feasible, flying machines could first find the forest fires, then extinguish them from above, cloud conditions being favorable.

The theory of a bargain sale is that a small loss on a few lines will be more than offset by the increased patronage attracted.

It's a good theory, too.

BRIDE OF 4 MONTHS HAD 'VARIOUS RIVALS'

NEW MATE HAS SUED O'NEILL

Second Matrimonial Venture of Roxbury Man Comes to Grief in Hurry

Another marriage venture of Arthur H. O'Neill of Roxbury has come to grief in the divorce court, where the former liquor dealer is being sued by his second wife, Mrs. Evelyn C. O'Neill.

She alleges he has been unduly intimate with various women since their marriage less than four months ago.

She charges O'Neill also with cruel and abusive treatment. In her divorce suit brought in Suffolk Superior Court, Mrs. O'Neill declares they were married October 22, 1922.

FIRST MARRIAGE FAILED.

In January, 1917, O'Neill paid ardent court to Persis M. Tuma of South Weymouth. The girl is said to have eloped to New York with a wealthy college student, but was baled in her plans to marry him when O'Neill appeared on the scene and persuaded her to leave her millionaire college boy.

Then she married O'Neill. A year later the couple were subjected to public notice again when the young husband brought suit against Mrs. Hazel Richardson, comely and wealthy Weymouth widow, charging alienation of his wife's affections.

WIFE REBUKED BY JUDGE.

The situation was complicated by a divorce suit brought by the first Mrs. O'Neill, in which she charged her husband with cruel and abusive treatment and forgetfulness of marriage vows.

The divorce case came to trial and was halted by Judge King in Suffolk County Court when the demure Mrs. O'Neill astounded the court room by telling the judge that she thought she was married when a marriage license was procured.

The judge ordered her to go home and procure her marriage certificate. It developed that the couple had lived together some time before a ceremony had been performed, and the judge severely rebuked Mrs. O'Neill.

OFFICIAL DEATH TOLL IN MINE HORROR 120

Dawson, N. M., Feb. 13.—But two of the 122 miners in Dawson mine No. 1 when a terrific explosion occurred there last Thursday survived. That was definitely established today when the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, owners of the mine, announced it had been completely explored and all possibility of any of the entombed men still being alive had vanished.

The known death toll today stood at 106. Fourteen still lie in the tunnels in which they were working when the impact of the explosion snuffed out their lives.

Sixty of those lost flew the American flag, their tonnage amounting to 91,000 tons. The British lost fewer ships, but a greater tonnage, 45 vessels of 112,000 tons being lost.

His request was granted.

16 ARE RESCUED AT BLAZE IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Feb. 13.—The population of the tenement district was routed from bed this morning by a general alarm fire in Amesbury street, which was fought for hours before controlled.

Women and infants poured from burning structures into the terror of one of the worst blizzards Lawrence has experienced in years. Sixteen occupants of one flat were quartered in a stable after being rescued by firemen from No. 55 Amesbury street, where the fire started.

A gale of wind caught the flames and tossed sparks for hundreds of yards. Soon after the blaze began it communicated to an adjoining wooden structure at No. 59 Amesbury street.

The fire started in the clothing store of Fred Bistany, at Common and Amesbury streets, in a building owned by Dr. John J. Deery of the Lawrence Board of Health. It quickly ate through to adjoining stores and worked up through the roofs to tenements on the second stories. Nos. 55-57-59 Amesbury street were ablaze within an hour.

Those driven from one of the tenements were George Salem, his wife and seven children; Joseph Salem, his wife and three children, and Joseph Hokus and his sister.

'THE FOOL' A LESSON IN CHRISTIANITY

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

It has ever been the contention of radicals and free thinkers that the modern Christian church is conducted for the benefit, at least for the personal gratification, of its heaviest contributors. And now comes Channing Pollock's widely heralded "The Fool," adroitly garbed in the arts and tricks of the theatre, proclaiming the dramatist's support to this theory in a three-act sermon that shot its message straight across the footlights at the Selwyn last night and giving a big first night audience a tidy lesson in practical Christianity.

PLAY PREACHES.

"The Fool" preaches—you cannot get away from that—but it also entertains, which, after all, is the primal mission of the theatre and the wares it displays. Mr. Pollock writes with an almost uncanny knowledge of human nature and, while he may take you by the hand and lead you through the by-roads of the New Testament, he provides companions of more than passing interest.

They are companions of your every day life—men and women you meet everywhere in life's byways, from the crowded street car to the vestry of the First church on the night the flock meets for a social hour. Mr. Pollock has created an absorbing play and peopled it with characters you have known from childhood—you may even recognize yourself in the group. That's how human in its outer aspects "The Fool" becomes as its story gradually unfolds.

NOT A DULL MOMENT.

The play is a experiment, which might suggest certain forebodings except for the fact that it doesn't hold a dull moment. Frankly, Mr. Pollock's aim was to give the theatre something it could enjoy without blushing—he admitted as much as that last night in a graceful speech dragged from unwilling lips.

The really fine thing about "The Fool" is the breadth of its appeal, for it stretches a beckoning finger to the non-theatregoer as well as to the hardened patron who takes his drama regularly, no matter what the mixture contains. Call it a sermon, if you must, but running parallel to its brightly painted moral is a two-fisted, red blooded drama that drives straight from the shoulder.

The presentation of "The Fool" was assigned to capable hands. Charles Millward made a spiritual Gilchrist—a role that must have taxed his physical strength to its last ounce. His response to the demands of the role was the most brilliant contribution to the performance. Alexandra Carlisle made the "woman in the case" as human as anything the season's stage has revealed, and Hale Norcross and David Leonard acted impressively. Hilda Vaughn and Zilla Inez Shannon deserve kind words for splendid characterizations.

HARD HITTING DRAMA.

"The Fool" plunged boldly into everyday problems. It touched the church, labor and sociology; it slammed the smug hypocrite who practices Christianity on Sunday and willful business on other days; it proposed a new organization plan for labor and capital, and it held out a ray of hope for those who have made mistakes and are trying to stand for a new deal. And there was not a moment in its four acts when you were not enjoying virile, hard hitting drama.

HAROLD LLOYD TOPS BILL AT ORPHEUM

Harold Lloyd, screen comedian, was the outstanding factor in one solid hour of mirth at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday, where he appeared in his latest photoplay, "Dr. Jack." The production is of five reels and may easily be termed as the best work of this performer. "Dr. Jack" is a conglomeration of everything one could hope for in a super-comedy and Lloyd's box of tricks seems everlasting.

The vaudeville also came in for a substantial share of the applause, and included such established performers as "Four Kings and a Joker," cherry melodious musical gambol, featuring Carl Francis and a quartette of charming debutantes; George Rosener in "The Anthology of an Old Actor Around Arthur Tyson in "Brighter Days;" Ling & Long; and Erfords Oddities. A Pathe news completed the program.

Coming Plays

"Listening In," a merry mystery comedy, will move into the Wilbur next Monday.

Lionel Atwill, in "The Comedian," is announced as the attraction at the Tremont next week.

"Elsie," broadly proclaimed as a musical comedy sensation, will come to the Shubert next Monday.

LOVE SCENES THAT DID NOT END AT ALTAR

"UNCLE TOM" GOING AT FAST PACE

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," a play that has outlived its many rivals of half a century ago, proved a good drawing card at the Arlington Theatre last night.

Little Eva, Uncle Tom and Topsy made as favorable an impression on their audience here last night as did these same characters back in the early '60s. Judging by the applause received and favorable comment made by the audience, this old play is not yet doomed for the final curtain.

All the features that have made "Uncle Tom's Cabin" a favorite among the American theatre-going public for more than fifty years have been retained by the Newton and Livingston Company, and many good scenic and musical numbers have been added. Eliza's thrilling escape from bloodhounds over the ice in the river is shown in a very realistic manner. The death of little Eva; the auction block at the slave market; the whipping of Uncle Tom; the slaying of Simon Legree and the death of Uncle Tom are vividly portrayed.

The Newton-Livingston version is in four acts and fourteen scenes. A number of specialties are introduced. Fred Finley plays the part of Uncle Tom, Miss Stewart is seen as little Eva, Daisy Dupont is the Topsy and Earl Newton plays Lawyer Marks. A 3-piece orchestra lends popular melody to the performance.

ANOTHER COHAN HIT AT ST. JAMES

Patrons of the St. James Theatre are offered this week another of George Cohan's successes in "A Prince There Was." This is one of the best productions yet attempted by the Boston Stock Company, that group of stage artists that are day by day growing more and more popular.

The cast was augmented by the appearance of Ittie Theresa Kilburn, juvenile, who won her way deep into the hearts of the audience. Adelyn Bushnell, as the struggling writer, and "Walter Gilbert, as the man of no say, appear at their best.

A pretty love story runs through the play, with plenty of humorous touches, especially when Mr. Gilbert, the millionaire, in order to be near the heroine of the play, takes up residence at the same boarding house.

Little Miss Kilburn, as the instrument which brings the hero and heroine together, wins a large share of the generous applause that is always to be found at the St. James.

JULIA ARTHUR TO APPEAR IN DAVIES' FILM

Washington, Feb. 13.—Julia Arthur has accepted an offer to appear as Queen Elizabeth with Marion Davies in a new Cosmopolitan motion picture.

The distinguished actress, before a notable audience, repeated her New York success in the closing scene from "Hamlet" at Keith's Theatre. She said:

"I am looking forward with much real pleasure to my work at the wonderful Cosmopolitan Studios next Spring, following the close of my present engagement.

PRAISES YOUNG STAR.

"And it will be an especial delight to be in the same cast with Miss Davies. I first saw her in 'When Knighthood Was in Flower' and, although I did not know her personally, I wrote her a letter expressing my admiration for her truly splendid performance in that marvelous film.

"Since then I have come to know her and to appreciate her grace and charm of personality, and I feel sure that our work together in the new picture will be one of the most enjoyable experiences of my career.

"I have visited the Cosmopolitan studios, and it is hardly too much to say that they are beyond praise.

LAVISH AND ARTISTIC.

"The management is not only lavish in its apparently unlimited expenditure, but is artistic to the highest degree and to the minutest detail.

"To act in such surroundings and with such an actress as Marion Davies will be a privilege such as any artist would greatly enjoy."

The name of the new production has not yet been decided upon. Miss Arthur said. It is to be a play about the Elizabethan era. Those who know the plans for it report that it promises in every way to transcend, dramatically and artistically, the stupendous success of the "Knighthood" picture.

HUGE APPLE TREE AT STATE BALLROOM

A huge apple tree with its many spreading branches and a generous supply of artificial blossoms adorns the centre of the State Ballroom, which Manager "Art" Spaulding hopes will serve as a new slogan—"Meet her in the shade of the Old Apple Tree." The usual Tuesday dansant will be held this evening with dance-compelling music furnished by the State Theatre ballroom orchestra, directed by the Lambert Brothers. These dancing events are held regularly on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Mr. Spaulding announces that he has completed arrangements for the early appearances of McEnelly's singing orchestra, which only a short time ago appeared as a headliner at Keith's Theatre.

KEITH'S BILL IS FUNNIEST IN YEARS

For the first time in years an audience at Keith's last night stood up on their feet, yelled, screamed and actually whistled their delight at one of the best, funniest and most sensational vaudeville bills ever offered at this theatre.

On the strength of what folks said going out of the theatre the box office will have a hard time to supply seats this week. And that with no big names on the bill—just variety, with an afterpiece at the finish to which all the acts contributed, lasting for over half an hour and composed of the funniest nonsense ever thrown together by a bunch of clowns whose spontaneous stuff got over better than their individual acts. Whoever planned and executed this afterpiece deserves all the credit.

Incidentally, Ben Bernie and his band are new to Boston, but will be a memory not soon to be forgotten by those who hear this extraordinary dozen. Ben Bernie has started where the rest left off. It's one of those things that must be heard to be appreciated. They played three quarters of an hour and could have played all night if the patrons had their way.

Others on the bill, who joined in the last half hour of collaborative cut-ups were: Jay Dillon and Betty Parker in musical comedy bits; Frank Dixon, in "Lonesome Manor," by Paul Gerard Smith; Ola Olson and Chic Johnson; Maurice Diamond & Company, with Helen McMahon, in "Snapshots of 1922;" Cross and Santora, who offer a fine physical culture act; Marie Walsh and Frank Ellis; Lorette Rhodes and Ruth Watson and Howard's Spectacle, an animal act that tickled the children as much as the Bernie boys edified the adults.

Great vaudeville this week at Keith's.

BEGINS NEW PICTURE AT LOS ANGELES

New York, Feb. 13.—Anita Stewart has signed a contract to be featured by Cosmopolitan Productions, and has gone to Los Angeles to begin work at Cosmopolitan's West Coast studio.

Anita Stewart

The first picture in which Miss Stewart will appear is "The Love Piker," by Frank R. Adams, which originally appeared as a story in Cosmopolitan Magazine. The screen adaptation was made by Francis Marion, and the picture will be directed by E. Mason Hopper. Miss Stewart is one of the best known screen actresses, and for several years has been appearing in Louis B. Mayer productions.

BEBE DANIELS HOME AFTER OPERATION

New York, Feb. 13.—Bebe Daniels, screen actress, was back at home today, following an operation for appendicitis two weeks ago. She was as pleased as a child when she left the hospital, the confinement having irked her.

Bebe Daniels

Her first act upon arriving home was to send two telegrams of congratulation, one to Harold Lloyd and one to Charlie Chaplin, her "two best friends," as she said, on account of the marriage of the first and the engagement of the second to Pola Negri.

AUDIENCE IN MERRY TRIP AT THE GAYETY

Audiences at the Gayety Theatre went on a merry trip yesterday with Frank Finney, star comedian; Helen McClain, prima donna of beautiful voice and looks, and the other gifted entertainers in Finney's latest Revue. He calls it "Spinning Out," and that's what they all do, with many delightful songs, dances and novelties. Finney was the gay conductor of the amusing journey.

Ed C. Jordan, doing a comical black-face "dope" specialty, is Finney's foil in fun making. The burnt cork "dope" act is one of Ed's own creations, and it was a great laughter. Monahan and Vance scored with comedy dancing specialties. George Bartlett had important parts in comedy scenes. Beth Fuller and Ameta Pynes, soubrettes, and Mabel McCloud, ingenue, shared with Helen McClain the duties of leading the feminine ensembles. The chorus of eighteen pretty girls was a typical Finney collection, trained to the minute and filling the eyes with satisfaction.

Plays That Remain

HOLLIS—"Lightnin'," most popular comedy of the present generation.

PLYMOUTH—"Just Married," with Vivian Martin and Lynne Overman. Sea-going farce.

TREMONT—Irene Bordoni in "The French Doll." Spirited comedy, with fashion display.

SHUBERT—"Naughty Diana," with Charles Ruggles. Musical farce of sporty design.

COLONIAL—Ed Wynn in "The Perfect Fool." The irresistible Wynn surrounded by music and girls.

WILBUR—"The Bat," making its final bid for attention. This is the last week.

PARK—"Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," spirited photoplay now on its last week in Boston.

TREMONT TEMPLE—"The Town That Forgot God," a feature picture of sensational character.

LOEW'S FROLICS AT THE STATE THEATRE NOW

Loew's Local Frolics, the spectacular musical revue presented by a talented aggregation of fifty boys and girls, is the headliner at Loew's State Theatre this week and yesterday continued its sensational success of the past week.

The company is the same one that appeared at the Orpheum Theatre last week and their performance yesterday won the endorsement of two capacity audiences. Many of the company have never before appeared in public, yet their poise, confidence and ability could hardly be excelled by professional performers.

The revue is a splendid mixture of song, dance and mirth, and the clever contributors are Miriam Greenwelt, Ruby Howard, Joe Rubin, Lillian Stone, Marl Arden, Dorothy McNamara, Cari Moore, Wendell Cooke, Sammy Kraft, Milton Alpert, Roland Ricker, Phyllis Bernick, Dolly De Muth, Alice Mack, Miriam Rose and Edward Rose.

On the bill also shown Mae Murray in her latest Metro production, "Jazzmania." A news pictorial completed the bill.

VANDERBILT TO WED WITHIN WEEK

Newport, R. I., Feb. 13.—Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Miss Gloria Morgan will be married at the former's country estate in Portsmouth within a week, it was learned today.

'BLOSSOM TIME' ONCE MORE IN BOSTON

A real treat for lovers of musical plays is "Blossom Time" at the Boston Opera House. After an orgy of musical comedies filled with jazz and so-called entertainment for the Tired Business Man, "Blossom Time" is like a breath of Spring.

This production offers something more than mere silk covered limbs and blankly beautiful faces. It offers music. The songs are far above the ordinary, the dancing is graceful, the voices are well trained and pleasing, and the costumes are a delight to the eye. "Blossom Time" is worth seeing.

Two years ago "Blossom Time" visited Boston. It has played in New York since. Boston is fortunate to have it back. The production has a real plot. It deals with the love—the hopeless love—of Franz Shubert, the composer. It is a pretty love story with an ending that is not entirely what one might wish.

Joseph Mendelsohn, as Shubert, is a success. He has a pleasing voice and knows how to use it. Little Edith Thayer as Mitzi, Shubert's inspiration, was charming. Tyna Varela as Bellabrunn was effective, and Dalma Welford as Kranz, father of Mitzi, deserves much credit for an admirable bit of character acting.

IRENE BORDONI IN CLASSICS NEXT YEAR

Irene Bordoni, now at the Tremont Theatre in "The French Doll," will bring her season to a close at the end of her Boston engagement on next Saturday night, and will sail for Paris a few days later. She will stay abroad for five or six weeks arranging for her future appearances in America.

In addition to a new play by an American author, Miss Bordoni will appear at matinees in revivals of classic plays to be given in the French language. The most notable of these will be three or four of Molliere's comedies, most probably "Les Precieuses Ridicules," "L'Ecole des Femmes," "Les Misanthrope," and "Les F'emmes Savant."

POLLACK ADDRESSES NEWSPAPER WOMEN

Channing Pollack, author of "The Fool," now playing here, and Frank Sibley, a reporter, were the guests of honor at the Boston Newspaper Woman's luncheon at the Hotel Victoria. Mr. Pollack spoke on the advantage of newspaper training in writing plays. Mr. Sibley talked on the responsibility of the newswriter to his reading public, and how not to avoid it.

DASHING REVUE IS MAJESTIC OFFERING

Shubert vaudeville at the Majestic Theatre this year has been of an uncertain variety, but has enjoyed more or less prosperity This week Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield offer a dashing revue that deserves much better patronage than the small audience which greeted the Winter Garden performers. Such is the theatrical business.

Mr. Lean and Miss Mayfield have brought their best to the Majestic this week and that is saying much. There are tuneful melodies, clean fun, and clever dancing galore. The dancing of Harry Elsworth places this young man in the top ranks of eccentric dancers. The chorus is well trained and pretty.

The musical numbers were well received.

GORGEOUS BILL BRINGS MARION TO WALDRON'S

Dave Marion brought to Waldron's Casino yesterday "The Marion Show," one of the most gorgeous musical revues on the entire burlesque circuit. Marion himself, in his inimitable character of "Snuffy the Cabman," heads a highly specialized cast, with a ballet and ensemble chorus of thirty-five girls. The production is a spectacular whirl of fun, life, music and color. Dramatic moving pictures and vaudeville complete the three-in-one continuous program.

Delmore's Lions, a trained animal act replete with thrills, but safely staged behind steel bars, is a feature of "The Marion Show" that is unusual for burlesque. Opening audiences were stirred with repeated applause by the feats of the lions and the daring of the trainer.

For his production Marion bought the entire equipment of last season's "Follies" from Ziegfeld, including scenery, draperies, costumes and electrical outfit, all as a basis on which to build a gorgeous musical revue. Marion was delightfully funny in his cabman role, as a traction bandit and in other comedy scenes. He was aided in fun-making by Walter McManus, eccentric comedian, known as "Colonel of the Nuts;" with Carleton Chase, Edward Davis and Billy Rose as assistant foils for these comedians.

Mae Marvin's rendition of "Old Pal" brought repeated encores for its sweetness, and Mary Lee, premiere danseuse, led the ballet of thirty-five girls through elaborate ensemble figures with dainty grace

D'ANNUNZIO DENIED AUDIENCE WITH POPE

Milan, Feb. 13.—It is reported that Gabriel D'Annunzio recently sent his portrait to Cardinal Gasparri, and asked permission to see the Pope. Cardinal Gasparri is declared to have replied:

"His Holiness directed Cardinal Gasparri to send him the photograph, which he inscribed, 'follow to the end of thy way in faith.'" D'Annunzio, however, was not admitted.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D.C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run-down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. Ida Hewitt, 1629 Penna. Ave. S. E., Washington, D.C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

TUBE CONTEST DRAWS NEW WRINKLES

A vernier rheostat which can be easily made at home is a wrinkle offered by Homer Borter in the free tube contest.

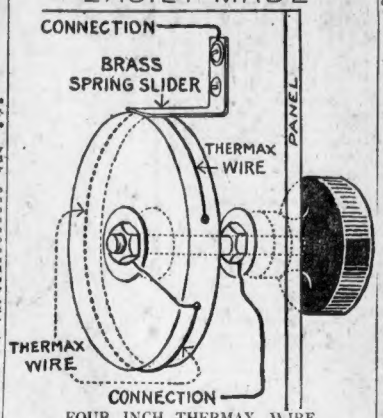
Many tubes work best at a very critical filament temperature, and for picking up DX stations, a vernier rheostat is necessary.

Its construction is shown in the accompanying diagram. A four-inch piece of thermax wire furnishes the resistance. This wire is mounted on a wood dowel, held in place on the shaft of a knob and pointer by two washers and nuts. One end of the thermax wire is connected to the shaft, and a short lug, which is held tight against the inside nut, makes one connection to the set. The other connection is made to a brass slider, being merely a strip of brass bent at right angles so as to rest on the resistance wire.

Here's a good wrinkle offered by C. T. Issertell of Rosemont street, Haverhill:

"Instead of purchasing an expensive formalite panel, I used a piece of cherry (or any) wood. I drilled all holes for rotor shaft, condenser shaft, binding posts, etc., with a ¾ inch bit, and then screw into each hole one of those insulator "dudads" which are used where the cord wire enters an ordinary electric light socket. These "dudads" can be purchased for 10 cents a dozen, which reduce the cost of your panel quite a lot."

VERNIER RHEOSTAT EASILY MADE



FOUR INCH THERMAX WIRE

An easily made vernier rheostat. It consists of about four inches of thermax (resistance) wire wound on a 1¼ inch wooded dowel mounted on a shaft with a knob and pointer. Connection is made by a brass slider which presses against the resistance wire as shown. The rheostat is connected in series with an ordinary rheostat, and allows of fine adjustment of filament current.

AGED WOMAN DIES IN ASSONET HOME

Says Socony dealers have real sense of local pride and duty to local customers

"I've often said if I've got to lose my way somewhere, I'd rather do it out in the country than in a large city. One experience I remember very well. City of about three quarter million. I was looking for the brother of an old friend from my own town. Heard he was living with a married daughter, whose name I didn't know. Imagine my job!

"I traced them to a certain block only to find they had moved. Janitor didn't know where. Policeman didn't know. Meantime I got all turned around, zig-zagging and criss-crossing. Just then I saw a Socony Gasoline pump at the corner, so I pulled up, as my tank level was pretty low. The Socony man, of the active, wiry type, was on the job before I had time to give him the horn.

"While he fixed me up with water, gas and air, I asked for my east-and-west, and made some remark about finding people in that part of the city. And I'm blessed if the man didn't know exactly where that family had moved! Nothing strange about it, though. He'd been born within a stone's throw, and knew everyone for blocks. City or town or village, Socony dealers seem to be neighborhood folks, and so they get my vote."

Winter is the season that tests a gasoline. Socony will get you away on time in the morning and give you power and mileage right through. Try it.

INVENTOR HAS FLED WITH HIS BOY, AGED 4

William V. Pruscino, author, translator, linguist and inventor of "Television," a device by which persons holding a telephone conversation can actually see each other over the wire, has vanished with his son, Anthony Francis, four years old.

The Boston inventor's wife has secured a warrant for his arrest on charges of non-support and wife desertion. The police are engaged in a country-wide search for Pruscino.

Mrs. Pruscino.

The mother and brothers of Pruscino, who live at No. 366 Hanover street, North End, declare that he has wandered away. The wife, with whom they are estranged, declares that he has deliberately run away and that she was tricked into coming to Boston from her home in Columbus, Ohio, so that the father could obtain possession of the child.

BLAMES INVENTION.

"If they will only give me my baby back I will forget everything else," sobbed the mother. She is at present living in a furnished room at No. 2787 Washington street, Roxbury.

"I was a nurse in the Frances Willard Hospital, Chicago, five years ago, when I met Mr. Pruscino, a patient who came under my care," she stated. It was love at first sight. We were both 25 years old.

"Things changed with the birth of our son. My husband got absorbed in his invention of 'Television.' Finally our funds ran out. Honestly, it got so that I would feel lost if I wasn't carrying a suitcase in one hand and my son in the other burrying to catch a railroad train.

"My husband got all kinds of positions but never held them for over a week. A furnished room was our home. Finally, I received a telegram saying that my mother was dead in Columbus. When it came time to leave Mr. Pruscino disappeared with my baby. I appealed to the police and they got my boy.

"There is no use denying that I love him. And when he kept writing me to come back to Boston, that we would start all over again, I just had to give in. The upshot of the matter is that I had to go out to work. I am a trained nurse.

Window Smashing Complaint Leads to Own Arrest

Lawrence, Feb. 13.—When a plate glass window of the store owned by Antonio Presti at No. 16 Common street crashed in, Antonio forced Jere Sullivan, sixty-five years old, to accompany him to police headquarters. The manner in which he held Jere captive was a novel one. Antonio grabbed for a bundle he had under his arm and a shirt fell out. Antonio started with the shirt to police headquarters. Jere followed all the way urging to wrest the shirt away.

Antonio told Captain Yone his story. Jere said he slipped, against the window and broke it accidentally. He admitted that his footing was uncertain, but blamed two glasses of a potent beverage he purchased from Antonio. Antonio was arrested.

CHILDREN, MATCHES, HOME IS DESTROYED

Children with matches caused the loss of the dwelling house by fire of Mrs. Mary LaBlanche, at No. 3 Olive place, North Cambridge.

Two children, Clovis and Mary La Blanche, five and three years old, respectively, were playing in the dining room of the home. They ran screaming to their parents telling them of the fire that had started.

'LOVE CHILD' CHARGE A PLOT, PASTOR SAYS

Salem, N. Y., Feb. 13.—"I resent to the utmost any efforts to victimize me," declared Rev. C. L. Jones, pastor of the local Methodist church after taking legal steps to force Miss Ivy MacMillan, auburn-haired and vivacious high school teacher, to explain why he was named as the father of her child in the burial certificate issued for the baby born two months ago. Jones is married and has four children.

Miss MacMillan, 26 years old, has been a teacher for two years. She is a member of the Rev Mr. Jones' church and acted as his housekeeper last April in the temporary absence of his wife. Jones is 34.

Miss MacMillan's baby was born two weeks after she had refused the demand of school authorities that she resign. Her relatives assert she named Jones as the father of the baby several weeks before its birth. When the baby died the name of the father was not placed on the death certificate, but Rev. Jones' name appeared on the burial paper.

While members of the church are practically unanimous in their support of the clergyman, intimates of the girl at school and in this village declare she has always been above reproach.

New York Detectives Ordered to Go to New School

New York, Feb. 13.—All of New York's 892 detectives are going to take their books under their arms and start to school in a few days. The school is designed to make backward members of the department snappier and the bright members still more keen.

This will be the first school of its kind in the United States. It will give the men real training, not the correspondence kind. The idea for such an innovation here is that of Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright.

$50,000 LOSS IN FIRE AT CHELSEA

A general alarm fire caused the worst scare in years in the East Side section of Chelsea. A dozen families fled their homes.

The blaze raged in the two and one-half story brick building at Nos. 108-118 Marginal street, and damage estimated at $50,000 was done.

The building is occupied by the Beacon Waste Supply Company, William A. Feinburg & Sons, proprietors. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

The Chelsea fire department was assisted by apparatus and crews from East Boston, Charlestown, Winthrop, Revere and Everett. Much of the damage was caused by water. The fire blazed through the roof soon after it started. It was under control in less than an hour.

Try This to Break Up Cold

Prescription Used 30 Years Prized Highly

MOST people don't know that a "cold" is very similar to a headache in origin. Each is caused by congestion or gorging of the blood vessels. You can break up a cold with one or two Orangeine powders compounded from a famous prescription. Ask for it by name—Orangeine. This treatment reduces the congestions and so the cold "goes." For more than 30 years druggists have been dispensing this prescription as a positive form of relief for Headache and various kinds of pain.

SELF MASTERY

Through Conscious

AUTOSUGGESTION

Only Authorized Book by EMILE COUE

PAGE 10

After what has just been said it would seem that nobody ought to be ill. That is quite true. Every illness, whatever it may be, can yield to autosuggestion, daring and unlikely as my statement may seem; I do not say does always yield, but can yield, which is a different thing.

But in order to lead people to practice conscious autosuggestion they must be taught how, just as they are taught to read or write or play the piano.

Autosuggestion is, as I said above, an instrument that we possess at birth, and with which we play unconsciously all our life, as a baby plays with its rattle. It is, however, a dangerous instrument; it can wound or even kill you if you handle it imprudently and unconsciously. It can on the contrary save your life when you know how to employ it consciously. One can say of it as Aesop said of the tongue: "It is at the same time the best and the worst thing in the world."

I am now going to show you how everyone can profit by the beneficent action of autosuggestion consciously applied. In saying "every one," I exaggerate a little, for there are two classes of persons in whom it is difficult to arouse conscious autosuggestion:

1. The mentally undeveloped who are not capable of understanding what you say to them

2 Those who are unwilling to understand.

The principle of the method may be summed up in these few words: It is impossible to think of two things at once, that is to say that two ideas may be in juxtaposition, but they cannot be superimposed in our mind.

GROOM IS ATTACKED IN HOME

Woman Is Among Victims of Fatal Clash That Marks Worcester Nuptials

The dead man is Pietro Nero. The injured are: Mrs. Josephine Morino, whom four uninvited guests entered the house. One of them became involved in an argument with the bridegroom and slapped his face.

Nicolas Morino and Adelph Morino, father and brother of the bride, jumped in and trouble started. The three friends of the uninvited guest joined the fight. The bride jumped between the fighters, but was hurled to the floor and kicked aside. Her wedding dress was spattered with blood.

When the trouble ended Nero was dead on the floor, shot through the back. Mrs. Morino was unconscious with a bullet in the chest.

Of New York, shot in chest; Adelph Morino, New York, stabbed in hand. Nicolas Morino, Worcester, stabbed in body and concussion of brain, and Salvatore Marvo, Worcester, scalded off.

The bride and groom, Mariana and Florence de Rupis, escaped injury.

According to the police, the wedding festivities were at their height.

FIRE RUINS LYNN ELKS' BUILDING

"Old Glory" Rescued by Laddermen; Many Families Driven Out of Homes

A general alarm fire swept clean the interior of the five-story Elks' Building at Spring and Exchange streets in Lynn today with damage estimated at $75,000.

Lynn Lodge of Elks lost all its regalia, records, furniture and furnishings except the big United States flag which was floating from an upright staff on the top of the building.

While the fire was raging inside the structure and smoke was curling up the walls, Hoseman R. G. Webber and Ladderman John McKenzie, heroes of several rescues, went up the front wall on scaling ladders to the coping, hauled down the flag from the staff and brought it to the ground while thousands of spectators raised cheer on cheer.

Sixty families occupying apartments in Melvin Hall, at No. 26 Spring street, next door to the burning building, were aroused on the first alarm.

Mrs. Anna Vancelette was asleep with her eighteen-months-old Lorraine on the third floor of Melvin Hall. When Patrolman Jeremiah Hickey called her to the door and warned her of fire she fainted. Hickey took the mother downstairs. Patrolman Thomas Ryan followed with the baby.

Mrs Augustus Krosky was assisted from the second floor by another policeman. All the other tenants got out safely.

Lynn Lodge of Elks occupied the three upper floors of the five-story brick building. Others burned out include:

First floor—Walsh Brothers, opticians; Harry Dillon, auto dealer.

Second floor—Miss Willette McKeever, dancing teacher; Cohen the Tailor, National Cash Register Company; Stitchers' Local 57, U. S. W. A.

IN AGONY OF SUSPENSE

ACCUSED AS AID TO ROBBERS

Malden Victim Declares He Was Drugged and Robbed in South End

Identified for the second time in two weeks as the lure of a gang of South End sluggers, Margaret Joyce of Dorchester, young and good looking, is held by the police.

Her accuser is Eugene J. Turner, sixty years old, of Fernald road, Malden. He declares the girl lured him to a South End rendezvous, which police say is a den of thieves, where he was drugged and robbed of $35.

The Joyce girl was released recently under $1,000 bonds as the "sluggers' lure," in the complaint of George Williams of Brighton. Williams said he flashed a roll of $115 in the presence of Miss Joyce and a companion, and a moment later felt a concussion as if a piledriver had hit him. He accused two girls and two men companions. They were charged with getting Williams' watch also.

DRINK CAUSES STUPOR.

According to the report of the robbery given by Turner in the latest case, Miss Joyce accosted him while he was walking in Washington street. She invited him to an Albion street house. There, he said, he was given a drink which caused him to lapse into stupor.

As he lay helpless, he declared, two men went through his pockets, removing the money. They were about to take his watch, he said, when the woman restrained them, saying:

WATCH DISREGARDED.

"Take time and you'll do time!" This warning, the police believe, might have had basis in the case of the robbery of Williams. His stolen watch is said to have been instrumental in achieving at least one of the five arrests made in that case.

With Miss Joyce were arrested George Clark, nineteen years old, of No. 739 Tremont street, and Edward Riley, twenty-eight years old, of Roxbury. Miss Joyce's street was given as No. 179 Geneva avenue. They were taken by Patrolman Walter E. McAuley and Turner identified them.

'HE'LL KILL ME!' SAYS GIRL WIFE; TAKES POISON

A white-haired suitor invaded the room where a South End girl-wife fought for life after draining a vial of poison.

He advanced to her bedside. She screamed and the man left. The girl's sister heard the scream and the victim was taken to the City Hospital. She is not expected to live.

Mrs. Alice Julian Perkos, eighteen years old, is the young wife. In agony on her cot at the hospital she mumbled the man's name and raved in dread. "He'll kill me. Keep him away!"

ACCUSED OF THREATS.

She wailed these words repeatedly, hospital authorities say. In her delirium she said that the man had threatened to "cut her up" if she refused his attentions. She told of having him arrested.

Mrs. Perkos attempted to end her life with iodine after receiving a letter from her husband, from whom she is estranged. The man is a seaman in the United State Navy, according to Leva Julien, the wife's sister. He went away after a quarrel and because he was jealous of the sixty-year-old suitor who has forced his attentions on the young wife.

The letter is said to have cast the girl into a fit of despondency and she swallowed the poison. The venerable suitor is a South End merchant, by whom Mrs. Perkos was employed before her marriage, according to Mrs. Emma Ware, landlady at No. 88 Waltham street, where the sisters have lived.

Mrs. Ware declared that the young wife had told often that she feared her former employer and that he had threatened to take her life if she persisted in repulsing him. The sisters have repeatedly moved, according to the landlady, because of this man's persistency.

Mrs. Perkos is said to be a native of Bohemia, but has resided for some time in the South End.

SLEUTHS DENY FRAMING 'REDS' IN U. S. PLOT

By International News Service

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Specific denials were made here today by the Burns and Thiel Detective Agencies of charges contained in a deposition by Albert Balanow, alias Ballin, confessed double crosser and former Federal Secret Service Agent taken in Chicago yesterday by Attorney Frank P. Walsh.

Walsh is chief counsel for the twenty-two men who will be placed on trial at St. Joseph, Mich., on February 26, for alleged violation of the Syndicalist Law.

Balanow who claimed to have been an operative of the Burns and Thiel Agencies charged the raid by the Michigan authorities which broke up a national convention of the Communist Party of America in the woods near Bridgeman, Mich., on August 22 "was framed and conducted by Allen O. Meyers," head of the Radical Department of the Burns agency, in New York.

He said Michael J. Flannagan manager of the Thiel Agency in Chicago, employed him to break windows during the cigarmakers' strike in Chicago in 1917, also that the Thiel Agency "framed" the "Red" raids here on January 1, 1920.

Both the Burns and Thiel agencies he testified, instructed him to join the I. W. W., the Young People's Socialist League, the Workers' Industrial International Union and the Communist Labor Party, to incite members to violence and sabotage and in other ways aid underground revolutionary movements.

Balanow is a Russian, twenty-eight years old, son of a Russian anarchist. He personally expected to be used by Attorney Walsh at the forthcoming trial at St. Joseph.

NORWOOD PRIEST HERO OF FIRE

While St. George's Church, Norwood, burned, Rev. Francis Phelan of St. Catherine's Church fought through smoke and flames and saved the host and sacred vessels from the altar.

He escaped from the flaming structure without injury. Father Phelan had been notified at the rectory of St. Catherine's Church that the town's other Catholic edifice was in flames. He donned clothes and rushed in his auto to the fire.

The fire was spectacular and caused damage estimated at $30,000. The flames ate away the support of the bell in the tower and it crashed to the floor of the church.

8 AIRPLANES FOR TRAINING TECH BOYS

A new school of aeronautics, offering a course in practical aviation to students at Technology, will be opened at the institute about March 1. Tech up to the present time has been the leader in airplane design in the United States, but the students have been given no opportunity to get actual flying experience.

Two buses have been established in Boston and Hingham and eight planes have been bought. They are of the H.S.L. type, carrying six passengers besides the pilot and mechanic.

SUSPECT IN MURDER OF POLICEMAN FREED

After communicating with the Saxonville police, Boston officers today released Thomas McGrath of No. 1459 Concord street, Saxonville, who was held as a suspect in the murder of Patrolman Welch of Framingham. McGrath was arrested in a Summer street poolroom. His head was bandaged. He declared that he was injured in a Saxonville mill. This was found to be correct, who wanted to get rid of her.

WHERE PARENTS WAITED

Little Eleanor Calnan died in this house on Western avenue, Brighton, on Saturday. Repeated calls at Medical Examiner Magrath's office failed to obtain permission for burial. Finally, after forty-eight hours of waiting the necessary order came and the funeral took place today. The insets above are two other children of the Calnans—Mary (on the left), aged three and one-half, and Dorothy, two years.

GIRL TO REVEAL SHATTERED ROMANCE

When Susie Parents appears in East Boston Court to tell of her shattered romance with Nicola Paglucha of No. 37 Haynes street, East Boston, she is going to argue for the womanly right to change her mind.

For Susie says that every woman has the right to decide whether or not she'll marry. For a while she thought she would, but then something occurred to mar her pre-nuptial bliss, so she told him he could tear up the marriage intention he was carrying in his pocket.

Nicola didn't like the idea, so he went to Susie's home, No. 126 Everett street, East Boston, and she says there brandished a big revolver and told her just what he would do if she persisted in refusing him.

But he never came, and it was late yesterday afternoon that word finally came giving permission for the removal of the body.

BURIAL WAITED 48 HOURS FOR MAGRATH

Baby Eleanor Calnan of No. 417 Western avenue, Brighton, was buried today, four days after she died.

After forty-eight hours of futile effort to bring Medical Examiner G. Burgess Magrath to view the body of the month old infant, as the parents had been told was necessary under the law, a clerk of the office of Mr. Magrath, finally telephoned the undertaker that the body could be removed and that burial could take place.

In the meantime, the procrastination of Mr Magrath and the promises of his clerks kept the family in an agony of suspense. Dr. John F. Casey, of No. 94 Franklin street, Allston, who was summoned, called the medical examiner's office and was told Mr Magrath would be right over. Joseph L. Muldoon, the Brighton undertaker called in to take care of the funeral, called Magrath, and was told he would be right over. Four times the next day the frantic father communicated with Magrath's office, and on each occasion was told he was "coming right over."

TEACHER'S BODY FOUND IN HARBOR

Many miles from Swampscott, where she was supposed to have disappeared, the body of Miss Mabel C. Mansfield, sixty-two years old, Somerville teacher, was found floating in Boston Harbor, near Northern Avenue bridge.

Miss Mansfield had been strangely missing since January 23, and it was believed she committed suicide.

Miss M. C. Mansfield

Searching parties were organized and the beaches of the North Shore patrolled in an effort to find the body. The Somerville Boy Scouts, many of whom were pupils of Miss Mansfield, searched the Middlesex Fells and the extensive General Lawrence estate in Medford.

When she disappeared Miss Mansfield was on sick leave from duty. She had been ill and friends advanced the theory that she had leaped into the ocean in a fit of despondency. She lived at No. 26 Oxford street, Somerville.

An autopsy was to be performed today to determine whether she met death by suicide or accident.

New Brunswick N. J., Feb 13—Mrs. Jane Gibson, who was the chief witness of the prosecution during the investigation of the Hall-Mills murders last September, is seriously ill at her home here. Her physician refused to reveal the nature of her illness, but her brother declared she was in a semi-conscious condition from which she revived at intervals, muttering deliriously about a "mysterious woman" waving a handkerchief in front of her and of two men in a motor car.

SPORTSMEN FEED STARVING DEER

Nyack N. Y., Feb 13—A herd of forty wild deer is being fed today near Oakland Cemetery by a group of forty sportsmen. So hungry were the deer when a two foot snow blanket covered shrubbery and greens in the woods that they invaded the burial ground and despoiled graves of flowers. Several bales of hay and bags of oats have since been put out nightly for the herd.

VILLA PICKED TO WIN OVER MASON IN TITLE BATTLE

ALL-STAR FIGHT CARD FOR FANS TONIGHT

By RINGSIDE

Pancho Villa, world's greatest ring attraction with the exception of Jack Dempsey, battles Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., [illegible] American flyweight [illegible] as a result of his knockout victory over Johnny Buff. Mason, however, says he is still the champion, as he has never been defeated at 112 pounds. He lost a decision to Johnny Buff after fifteen rounds of milling, but the weight for that contest was 116 pounds.

Villa and Mason will both be under 112 pounds for tonight's contest and as a result the victor will have [illegible] clear claim to the title.

If Villa wins over Mason he will battle Frankie Genaro in New York and if successful in the Genaro match the little Filipino will take on Jimmy Wilde at an outdoor show in New York next Summer.

Villa is one of the most sensational boxers in the history of the ring game. He is a flash when in the ring. He punches from every possible angle, while he moves around the ring with tremendous speed.

Villa defeated Danny Edwards and Young Montreal in bouts staged at the Arena A. C. These [illegible] were virtually won when [illegible] Frank Churchill, Villa's manager, made Edwards and Montreal agree to make 1[illegible] pounds.

In their [illegible] to reduce to this notch Edwards and Montreal both dropped to around 11[illegible] pounds and were weak when they entered the ring.

Mason is naturally small and will not have [illegible] make weight. This will be to his advantage.

Villa is probably the most spectacular boxer to ever appear in a Boston ring. Although able to make as low as 110 pounds, he punches harder than most lightweights.

[illegible] his [illegible] very fast. As he keeps his head bobbing from side to side it is very difficult to hit him. Even Young Montreal found it impossible to do a great deal of scoring against this jumping jack of the ring.

Johnny Dundee at his best did not compare with Villa when it comes to doing the unusual in a bout.

A wonderfully well developed chest, powerful back muscles and strong arms have been of great assistance to Villa in his surge to fame.

The Filipino star came to this country last Summer virtually an unknown. He lost a popular decision and also a referee's [illegible] to Frankie Genaro before he became acclimated. Once Villa got accustomed to our climate he started his spectacular rise to fame.

His knockout of Johnny Buff of course was the crowning feat of his achievements. Pancho Lareno then went forth and conquered Danny Edwards, Young Montreal, Abe Attell Goldstein, Battling Murray, Terry Martin and a flock of minor opposition.

Before departing on his vacation Jack [illegible] that Villa should win.

Leo Flynn, however, calls attention to the fact that the short enders have been having their innings. Leo should know whereof he speaks as Dave Shade and Lou Paluso were both short enders at the Arena Club's last show.

Rocky Kansas, another short ender, gave Charley White quite a jolt over in New York last [illegible].

Flynn says Mason has been training carefully for six weeks and that he will furnish Villa with a surprise.

Mike Belirino, Filipino bantamweight, will clash with Billy Fitzsimmons of Chelsea in the semi-final of ten rounds.

Hambone Kelly of South Boston will meet Billy Mulldoon of Lynn in an eight round preliminary. This promises to be some battle as both boys are known as [illegible].

The Arena Club announces that despite the fact the American flyweight championship will be at stake tonight, there will be popular prices. All of which should please.

GET-TOGETHER OF HOVEY A. C. A SUCCESS

The first get-together of the C. F. Hovey Athletic Club was held in the store dining hall and was attended by more than 200 male employes of the establishment. It is [illegible] city. To judge from the enthusiasm manifested it will be a success.

The idea of the sponsors is to promote athletics and good fellowship among the employes. It is planned to organize hockey, football and baseball teams. James J. Sullivan is president, John O'Callahan, vice president, Roy Hall treasurer, and Timothy Degnan secretary.

The board of membership is made up of Maurice O'Connell, advertising manager, Joseph Crowley, Charles Jordan and George Keefe.

SAILOR FREIDMAN MEETS HARMON

Sailor Freidman, who will oppose Willie Harmon in the feature bout of the boxing show to be staged by the Fenway A. A. at Mechanics Building Thursday evening, is in town. The Chicago star was one of the spectators at last night's bouts and looks in the pink of condition for the main bout against Eddie Mack's entry.

Sailor Freidman

The Chicago champion figures he will easily dispose of Harmon and has [illegible] been hoping to shatter the long list of victories established by the local battler.

Harmon is one of the best of the club fighters and has accumulated a string of thirty straight and in his battle with Freidman he will receive strong opposition.

FURNISHING high-class evenings for lonesome males is latest business enterprise of a dizzy village. Young man stumbling into strange village merely puts in application for chicken. Anti-lonely heart organization does the rest, and it's plenty. Especially the collecting.

The stray egg, who needs a society to dig up some excitement for him, puts in application immediately after hotel clerk tells him his room won't be ready for six hours. He has to have references and everything. If they're satisfactory he's allowed to pay ten bucks. That's his entry fee. And the [illegible] girls aren't hanging around waiting for strangers, either. They tried out the scheme over in New York and had a bunch of applications. But somebody spoiled the rules and the rates and none of the boys with dates showed up. Which must have seemed natural to the gals who'd try to make 'em that way, anyhow. We've been in quite a few burgs, and we never yet saw one where a chap willing to fritter away twenty of thirty fish had any chance to be lonesome. As for rules—merely a matter of judgment.

SCHOLASTIC TEAMS IN IMPORTANT GAMES

By FRED C. LANE.

The teams in the Greater Boston Hockey League take a leading part in today's calendar of scholastic sport. All are down for action if the present ice conditions prevail when it comes time to play.

The most important game is the Newton-Melrose contest slated for Bullough's Pond. Newton and Melrose High, league leaders, will have the [illegible] test from the revamped Newton team at its best.

There has been no doubt since the opening that Melrose is the class of the circuit. They have proved it. They scored victories over every team except Newton. Outside of the league they have been successful.

Nick Tedesco.

Coach Surbeck has watched his team wade through the preliminary games and predicts a big future for the 1923 contingent. Melrose is the favorite.

Newton started off the season with a rush but was slowed down by injury and sickness. All the players on the Orange and Black sextet have the ability of the Melrose team [illegible] were [illegible] by a jinx that also sent the football eleven down with a [illegible] blow.

Dr. Martin, coach of the Garden City squad, has good news for the Newton supporters. All the players are in the best of condition and will surprise the Melrose team, which expects an easy victory.

Arlington High, with a comfortable hold on second place, has Rindge Tech to face at the Cambridge rink. Rindge has been an in-and-outer and makes a fine opponent for Arlington, which lost all chances of winning the title after Melrose had tagged a defeat on to them.

They have been persistent in their efforts nevertheless, and hope to take the reins should Melrose drop today's game.

The Brookline-Cambridge Latin game at Brookline should be interesting. The Cantabs have not been steady. They dropped three games in a row to inferior opponents and yet held the strong Exeter Academy team to a no-score tie. That the team deserves a better rating than that now tagged to it is certain. Were they more consistent in their team play they would enjoy the standing of teams of other years.

Somerville plays Malden at Malden. It has the strongest lineup to represent the team this year. Somerville should win a clean-cut victory. Danny McFayden, the stalwart Skil[illegible] of schoolastic [illegible], is back on the defence and strengthens the team 100 per cent.

Jeremiah at centre ice plays a whale of a game. He has put on weight since last season and has used this to advantage. Last season he lacked the stamina for a hard contest. Jeremiah is the most feared man on the Somerville team.

In the general summary of the competition, by cities, Brockton and Pawtucket show strong. The leaders, in order, are as follows:

The contest will close late this month and the 1,000 point winners will meet in Boston, March 17, for the championship.

Fugazy is the one who brought Sharkey out, and [illegible] that Jack can whip any man of his weight in Europe. Before the trip returns Sharkey expects to be champion of Great Britain.

As a final "prep" for his invasion on the other side, Sharkey will face Midget Smith in a ten-round battle at the new Melba Boxing Club, which will stage big battles at the Manhattan Casino.

Smith says he will stop Sharkey and then make the trip to England himself.

INDOOR POLO AT ARMY BASE FRIDAY

The 101st Field Artillery polo team will reopen its series at the Commonwealth Armory on Friday night when they will play a team of officers from the First Corps Area at the Army Base, South Boston.

The teams have split even in the two games already played and the National Guard aggregation has hopes of victory. The army players are men of experience but have not played together to any extent.

The Field Artillery has scheduled games with Essex county, February 23, and with Yale, March 2.

The First Corps Area lineup is: Forward, Major J. R. Daly; backs, Captain Ralph Sherwood and Captain T. Cunningham.

BABE STICKS TO THE PIRATES

New York, Feb. 13.—It is pretty definitely established now that Babe Adams, methuselah of moundsmen, will pitch for the Pirates.

One would think it would not have been better if his wish to retire had been granted by the Pirates. Instead of Manager Bill McKechnie going to his Missouri home to get his signature to a contract once again.

Babe Adams.

Born May 18, 1883, Adams will be forty-one on his next birthday. He is the Cy Young of the present day performers, but last season gave signs of slipping. He won eight and lost eleven games, which may be said to be poor, as the Pirates were pennant contenders most of the season.

PERFECT BACKSWING ESSENTIAL FOR MASHIE

The backswing of the mashie shot is extremely important.

The entire success of this shot depends on the manner in which the club is brought back.

First of all the right knee is braced firmly. The left knee and hip are turned in toward the ball and the left heel is raised slightly.

I want to call particular attention to the position of the head. It has not moved out of line during any part of the swing, and the eye is kept glued on that ball. Impossible to hit it otherwise.

The right elbow is down and held close to the body—almost in contact, in fact. The left arm is straight, with the left wrist well under the shaft.

This is little more than a half swing. The hands on this shot should never be raised much higher than the waist. The face of the club is always open, so that it can always be seen, not closed from view.

A good point to remember here is that when the backswing reaches its apex the club is virtually perpendicular to the ground or better, it is in a vertical position.

BOSTON COLLEGE WINS BRILLIANT VICTORY OVER QUEENS

EAGLE HOCKEY SEXTET BEATS CANADIANS

Boston College was given the acid hockey test by the Queen's College sextet at the Arena and scored a brilliant victory over the Canadians, 3 to 1. For fast play and clever stick work, it was one of the best games put on by the Arena management this Winter.

The team work of the Eagles proved a big asset for the Maroon and Gold team. Both goals were made as a result of passing, and that was instrumental in keeping the Canadians on the defence most of the time.

All the Queen's players were big. They used their weight to good advantage. Their body checking almost proved disastrous to the Eagles, for both Hughes and Foley, the mainstays of the attack, were knocked out twice.

The game was rough, but clean. Few penalties were imposed. B. C. scored early in the first few minutes of play, when Culhane, Foley and Hughes swept down the ice in battle formation. Culhane passed to Foley, who relayed to Hughes, and the star wing caged the rubber after two minutes and four seconds had elapsed.

The second period was the wildest of the contest. The puck see-sawed up and down the ice and both teams gave their all. B. C. made a desperate attempt to score in the closing minutes when Gibson was ruled off the ice for tripping. The Canadians gathered around their net and played defensive hockey while their teammate served.

Foley and Hughes were battered about in that stanza.

An entirely different game was played by both teams in the third period. Queen threw defence to the wind and made a wild attempt to even matters. With the exception of the goal tender, all gathered about the B. C. net and buried the puck at Fitzgerald. Hughes grabbed the rubber out of one of the scrimmages and with a clean field in front caged the disk for the second tally.

Three fresh players were thrown into the contest by the Canadian coach in this period and they raised the deuce with the B. C. defence. McDonald took the puck from behind his own net and evaded the B. C. defence and scored for Queen's.

Boston College sent in four subs to stem the tide of battle and the move was good. They opened up such a fierce attack on the Queen net that the Canadians changed their tactics and went on the defence.

The Victorias played a ragged game in their contest with the St. Nicholas Club of New York and lost, 5 to 2.

Arena May Build a Gallery to Seat 3,000 More

Hockey has such an appeal to the sport-loving public of this city and suburbs that it has been found that the spacious arena, which can accommodate 7,000 persons, is not large enough. Plans for a gallery, which will give an added seating capacity of 3,000, are under consideration. The interest is so tremendous that on all nights it was found necessary to close the doors, as every available foot of space was occupied.

The directors are keen to please the demands of the sport-loving public. Although it is too late for the improvement this season, it is practically certain for next winter. Arrangements to have the balcony constructed during the summer would not interfere with any events contemplated for that time of the year.

Red Synott entered the game in the third period.

SIKI TO BATTLE CARP AFTER BECKETT GO

Paris, Feb. 13 (By International News Service).—The reinstatement of Battling Siki into the good graces of the International Boxing Union, will not result in another Carpentier bout until after Georges has met Jack Bee-ett, British champion, in May. This statement was made today by Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier.

"Our contract with Beckett's manager prevents Carpentier from fighting any one before he meets Beckett on May 31," Descamps declared. "After that, Georges will gladly meet Siki any time and any place.

"If Siki wants to have his world's championship restored to him he must apply to the International Boxing Union at its meeting on Saturday."

INTERNATIONAL OPPOSES RECALL AGREEMENTS

By Universal Service.

New York, Feb. 13.—George Stallings and Jack Dunn buried the tomahawk today when the International League magnates ratified the schedule for the coming season. George came up from Georgia to wave the olive branch.

The Rochester manager brought peace in the form of a resolution to the effect that Dunn be released from his promise to sell two more players before opening day, April 18.

Other owners voted in favor of Stallings' resolution, and thus another "war" was averted. George didn't introduce the two-year $15,000 draft proposal which his partner presented at the December meeting, so that set of fireworks was a dud.

The schedule was gone over day by day and everyone got his pet dates fixed up to satisfaction. The complete set of games will not be announced until the end of this month.

The draft came in for discussion, and the moguls reiterated their stand made prior to January, that no players would be taken on agreements which have the recall clause inserted.

All assignments now made by the majors have the clause in them, so it looks as though the battle between the majors and the minors over the famous joint meeting decision, approved by Commissioner Landis, will be fought.

The resolution on this reads as follows:

"It is resolved that the International League refuses contracts with such provision (i. e., that players sent by the majors on optional agreement or sale be subject to recall and will refuse to allow any player sent under such a contract to play with any club in the league.

"Further, that such action by the major leagues is regarded as violation of the major-minor league agreement, and is void."

The resolution to release Dunn from his promise to sell players and the refusal to agree to the recall provision throws the gauge down to the majors.

TERRIBLE TURK TO GRAPPLE CALZA

Just how good is Hassen Ali, the terrible Turk will be demonstrated when he hooks up with George Calza, the Italian champion, in their finish match at the Grand Opera House, Thursday night. The Turk is the biggest man that Calza has ever been called upon to meet. He stands 6 ft. 5 in. high and weighs 274 pounds.

Hassen Ali

He has the distinction of never having been defeated on the mat, and is of the opinion that he can beat the Italian champion two falls in a great deal less than an hour.

The match is best two falls in three to a positive finish. The Turk says he would like to get a chance at Stanley Stasiak, the Polish Hercules, and it is likely that, win or lose, he may get a match with the giant Pole at a future date.

Another bout on the card is between Joe Gerardi, the Italian middleweight champion, and Eddie Shaboo, the welter and middle-weight champion of the navy.

Another contest will be between Charlie Metro, the Albanian tiger, and Frank Mante, the Australian middleweight champion. This match will be one fall to a positive finish.

CURRY VICTORY OVER MANTY A SURPRISE

Joe Curry of New Haven received the decision over Young Manty, holder of the New England feather weight championship, at the Armory A. A. show at the Grand Opera House. Evidently Manty had an off night, as he failed to live up to the reputation which preceded him. Curry earned the honors in six of the ten rounds. Manty was the aggressor throughout the contest, but the New Haven boy waited for his chance and landed the cleaner blows, thereby gaining the decision.

Manty showed considerable speed, but his jumping jack tactics failed to upset Curry, as the New Haven boy waited until he came within reach, and landed some blows which distressed Frankie Brown's protege. Curry gave Manty tough opposition in a bout at Lawrence and was thus enabled to get a line on the New Bedford boys' ability.

Manty's defeat came as a bolt out of the blue to the boys who make the odds, as they had figured that his punching ability and his fleetness of foot would enable him to win.

Although defeated, Manty retains his claim to the New England featherweight title as both were weighed over the weight limit. Manty tipped the scales at 127 pounds, his opponent was one pound heavier.

The semi-final bout, which brought together Johnny Fox of Woburn and Henry Ford of the North End, resulted in a victory for the latter, Ford carried practically every round. The bout was marred by Fox's continual complaints about Ford's low punching. The boys were divided in their opinion as to whether Fox really hit him low, or whether Henry was afraid to take them in the stomach.

Willie Garo of the North End evened up scores with Harold Sullivan of South Boston and received the decision over the Peninsula boy in eight rounds. Sullivan defeated Garo in a bout that was packed with thrills at the meeting of the Triple A. Club two weeks ago. Garo was content to let Sullivan fire himself out. In the first two rounds, and then he surged forth and grabbed the decision.

Jimmie Manning of South Boston stopped Young Bond of Cambridge in the second round of a scheduled eight round bout. Manning gave the Cambridge boy some terrific punishment in the first round, and continued to do so in the second. Referee Joe O'Connor intervened to save Bond.

Tommy Nee will clash with Abe Friedman in a bout for the bantamweight championship of New England at the next meeting of the Armory Club at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday.

WALTER CLEARY WILL COACH TUFTS LINE

Walter Cleary, the ex-Harvard football player, who last Fall worked wonders with the green line material at Tufts, will have charge of the Brown and Blue forwards again. Graduate-Manager C. P. Houston announces that Cleary had agreed upon terms and would assist Head Coach Eddie Casey with the Tufts squad.

This will come as glad news to Jumbo supporters, especially with the Harvard game on November 3. Cleary took over the supervision of the candidates for line positions last September, and with two veterans, Captain Russo and Red Barrett, as a nucleus moulded the best line seen at Tufts in years.

Barrett, a tackle on the 1921 eleven, was lost almost at the outset on account of appendicitis, but in Tyler and Rice, two sturdy players of huge proportions, but inexperienced, Cleary produced a pair of exceptional tacklers.

The play of the whole Tufts line was one of the features of the past season.

Owing to uncertain business Cleary had refused to sign a coaching contract, but Graduate-Manager Houston talked over the matter with Eddie Casey and announced that Tufts would go the limit to bring the line coach back to Medford Oval next Fall. Cleary had received a substantial increase in salary.

It is expected that a coach for the second team and an assistant to Freshman Coach Ollie Wescott will be selected within a few days. Ex-Captain Russo and Bob Abbott, a former Tufts coach, are among the men considered.

B. U. RIFLES WILL SHOOT OXFORD

Scores for the match between the Boston University rifle team, which won the championship of New England last year in the New England Intercollegiate Rifle Team matches, and the rifle team of Oxford, England, will be compared by cable after the contest, which will take place Thursday afternoon.

British targets and British methods of shooting will be used by the Boston University team. The Boston University men will shoot at the Irvington Street Armory. Skirmish will be used. The target will have a ringer of seventy-five feet and ten men will shoot. The five highest scores will count.

A tentative lineup of the Boston University men given out by Coach David included Captain R. C. Smith, R. E. Davis, Leslie Price, Alden Gay, E. M. Blunt, B. P. Gordon, J. P. Hall, J. F. Hammond, D. C. Bowdow and G. F. Hubbard.

CINCINNATI WILL FIGHT FOR RUBE BENTON

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

New York, Feb. 13.—The Rube Benton case, one of the most important ever to come up before the National League magnates, will be decided at the schedule meeting.

President Garry Herrmann of the Cincinnati club bought Benton from St. Paul, where he helped to win a pennant last season. Garry will make a fight to have him on his team once again.

President Heydler branded Benton as an "undesirable," who should not be allowed back. President Ban Johnson has flatly said Benton cannot join an American League team.

The objections of the two presidents to the veteran southpaw is the fuss he made when he charged "Buck" Herzog, former second-baseman star, once tried to bribe him to throw a game, and a counter-charge by Herzog that Benton bet on the crooked White Sox-Reds series in 1918, and knowing the games were not on the level.

When called by Heydler to prove his charges against Herzog, Benton was unable to do so. The Herzog charge has been the medium of several investigations.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants, who let Benton go to the minors, has said he did so purely because he did not think the pitcher capable of winning ball for his team, and that he had no reason to suspect Benton.

McGraw has shown how he treats players he suspects. His statements regarding Benton are strong points in the player's favor.

A few months ago, Charles H. Ebbets announced he had nearly all his players on the market. Then, at the annual major league meeting, he did no trading. He said he would not give a good man for several poor ones.

The situation may be different now, and Ebbets may put through a few trades. A number of his players have declared that he is stingy, things are not smooth, and a change of location would appeal to them. Also to Ebbets.

There is talk that Zach Wheat, veteran outfielder, with the team for a decade, will be traded. "Dutch" Reuther, star southpaw, had a falling out with Ebbets, and may go elsewhere.

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

A WELL known social worker says that no girl should go out with a young man unless she has a certain amount of "road money" in her pocketbook.

WHEN a fellow goes out with a dame and proposes to her and she rejects him she can't expect him to pay her car fare home.

SO it's up to the girl to take a dime or a pair of roller skates along with her.

A New York Romeo doesn't mind paying his Juliet's car fare home providing she doesn't live in San Francisco.

HE usually gives her a dime and tells her to ride as much wants' worth of it up and squander the other penny in any way she sees fit.

IF she wants to walk and save the whole ten cents he doesn't care. Her tired feet won't ache him.

BUT when a dame goes out with a guy she should have a little change in her pocketbook. As long as she's got a nickel or a quarter she can be independent.

THIS is the reason so many men court a young girl right in her own home.

IF she lives in a bungalow and you give her the air in the parlor she won't have far to walk.

OF course when some guys are presented with the income they claim that they're going right outside and blow their brains out. This is the reason a lot of girls go around with fellows who haven't got any brains.

PRACTICE makes perfect, but not unless you've got a talent.

SOME girls claim they always do their spooning on a street car and then if they don't like the way a man makes love, they get a transfer.

ONE dame had to ride on every line in the city before she found a man she could care for.

SHE told about ten fellows she'd see them the following, which was amateurs' night at her.

MOST of the birds were asleep. She said she didn't mind their overtures, but she didn't want them to take any encores.

SO, girls, if you haven't got a nickel, make your father get a job as conductor and then take your fellows riding, on his street car.

JOBS AND LEARNING TO LIKE THEM

Did you ever really try to like the work you have to do for a living?

A woman was heard to say, "I love to wash dishes." Her greatest boast was that she could wash more dishes and wash them better than any person she knew.

She also said that she "was never happier in any line of work than when holding the job of dish washer in a hotel or restaurant."

She said she always had had to work, but because of an injury she was unable to stand for some months. During that time she procured a job as dish washer, which she could do while sitting on a stool.

"I made myself think that I liked it and soon I did like it."

If a woman can learn to like to wash dishes, you certainly ought to be able to learn to like your job.

If you learn to like it, you will be happy in it and you will find you will become more proficient.

The Ravin'

Once upon a midnight dreary
As I chirsted, weak and weary
O'er a glass of weak and tasteless lemonade,
In there stepped a glass of whiskey
Causing me to feel quite frisky—
This long-forgotten ghost of Haig & Haig
"Fr..end" I cried in accents eager,
"Will you fill our collars meagre,
As in the good old days before the war?
Will we have our Scotch and rye
As in the days gone bye?"
Quoth the spectre as it vanished
"Nevermore!"

An Oversight

Daughter—How do you like my new evening gown, father?

Father—My dear girl, you surely aren't going out with half of your back exposed!

Daughter (looking in mirror)—Oh it's that stupid dressmaker's fault; she forgot to cut off the other half!

This Day in History, February 13, 1923

THIS is the anniversary of the birth, in 1718, of John Hunter, one of the greatest surgeons and anatomists. He first discovered the principle of compensatory development of blood vessels under the stimulus of necessity.

Elephant Paths

IN the forests, says Carl Akeley, the big game hunter, elephant paths are everywhere, a fortunate circumstance, since without them travel would be almost impossible. The constant changing is because of pits dug by natives.

OUT OF DOLL HOUSE

The Story of a Girl Who Had Courage and a Man Who Had a Change of Heart and Knew a Remedy Which Was Unobtainable

By Evangeline Weir

SARA RITTER looked approval at her reflection in the mirror. The silk shirt, the well tailored knickers, the stout mannish oxford shoes and a tweed cap set jauntily on her bobbed curls, read pleased her greatly.

"I ADORE A GIRL IN SENSIBLE TOGS" HER ESCORT TOLD HER

Freedom she exclaimed. "The walking dress of the future. I am glad to be a pioneer!"

Just at this point her attention was arrested by a conversation which floated up through the open window.

"There are no doll houses to let in these days," a masculine voice said. "They don't like the job of being pretty, entertaining and obedient. There is still enough lace and powder to supply them, but the girls prefer cars and clubs and jazz rather than sitting by hearths sewing or reading."

Joined the Party

Sara joined the party which had already gathered for climbing one of the mountains near the hotel. A few of the women were dressed like herself, but the short skirt outnumbered the knickers.

The man who approved of the silks, powder and heels arrived after a time with his choice. The girl had torn her skirt, her hair was untidy and her powdered face was mottled to an unsightly degree. Her temper had quickened as her value depreciated and she retired for repairs, much to the satisfaction of her burdened companion.

He turned with relief to Sara, who was looking fresh and neat after the long ascent. She smiled at the inconsistency of one who had so recently depreciated her matrimonial value.

"You look tired," Sara said. "Sit down and rest while Mr. Tracy and I build a fire."

"We had a delightful climb," Tracy drawled. "Miss Ritter climbs easily because she is so sensibly clad."

"I am glad you approve of my dress," with some dignity. "You are in advance of your age."

"I adore a girl in sensible togs," her escort told her.

"I adore a sensible man," [illegible] retorted.

"I wonder if you class me among the sensible ones?" the other man asked.

"Not unless you have a change of heart," she said, poking the fire into a blaze.

"You heard"——

"Yes," she answered. "No, do not apologize, it doesn't matter what you think," stirring the fire vigorously. "I am one of the women who intends to dress to suit occupation or margin."

"And if you lived in a doll house?" questioned the first man.

Sara folded her hands meekly. "I'd look pretty and helpless and obey when spoken to," she replied.

"I protest!" the other man ejaculated.

"I too," Sara cried. "This is a foolish conversation for a woman [illegible]."

"Miss Ritter is playing her new part," Tracy said in his meaningful drawling way as Sara came down fresh and sparkling in an evening dress the night following the trip up the mountain. "She is beyond censure. She would look well in a doll house, Mac."

MacKinsey Frowned

MacKinsey frowned. "Don't be a fool, Tracy."

"I admire that girl," Tracy continued. "A woman for work or sport. She dresses for all occasions and is entirely feminine, even in pantaloons. I like a girl with many sides and many costumes. That doll you took on the hike is only fit for the house, keep her there."

MacKinsey had had a change of heart, and it was rather serious. He knew the remedy, but it was not obtainable. His friend smiled wisely and shook his head. At last he spoke:

"Mac, if you give up that out-of-date idea of a doll house and build a home where the larger freedom of the day is possible, I'll be your best man."

MacKinsey must have thought the advice worth while, for a few months later Sara Ritter wore a diamond on her third finger. She smiled triumphantly as she held up her left hand. Her victory, however, was not a matter of clothing, but the individual independence of the woman who escapes from the doll house where she has been kept so long that she is unable to play but one part in the great game of life.

The Girl in the Cage

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

CAN he coax her out of her cage? Will his offerings of jewels persuade her to come forth and leaving the prison bars follow him to the ends of the earth?

He thinks he is asking not too much, but she knows she is safe where she is; her every want is anticipated; she doesn't have to worry or fret; and there are many cavaliers who, like him, are holding forth bribes of great price to lure her away.

But when the right one comes he will need no jewels; there'll be just a call from the heart and she'll open the doors and follow him and ask nothing except that he'll love her forever and ever.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Ralph Lacy Told Anne That Whenever She Wanted to Stage Anything She Could Call on Him to Be Her Director-General

By Ann Lisle

WHAT Jeanie's attitude toward the situation would be I couldn't foretell. Even Jim's was uncertain. All I had to [illegible] myself was the knowledge that I was taking the right course and even the inevitable one.

HOW COULD HE KNOW THAT THIS WAS THE ONE THING I COULDN'T DO?

Mr. Lacy's "five minutes" were short ones, so I hadn't much time to brood.

"Good morning," he said briskly, coming into the hall when I opened the door. "I've an appointment within walking distance of your house, so I'll send you down to your office and have my young taxi call back for me if that plan suits you."

"It does nicely, thank you, Mr. Lacy," I smiled, appreciating the full value of his thoughtfulness.

"Then I'll just take a minute to tell you something I think you ought to know," said Mr. Lacy quietly. "Last night Norreys and Miss Sturges came into the very restaurant where our party was dining. I'm not sure—but I think he saw us before I had a chance to face out the picture. Miss Sturges didn't. He put her where she couldn't see us. I thought you might feel better knowing this from me."

Glad to Hear It

"Thank you," I gasped. "I'm glad you've told me. What would you do if you were I?"

"I'd tell Norreys exactly what it's all about," replied Mr. Lacy quietly.

How could he know that this was the one thing I couldn't do?

Almost at the moment when I decided not to say a word to Tony in explanation of last night's peculiar affair, I realized that Ralph Lacy has a luncheon appointment with Tony today. Tony's directness may cause him to come right out and ask Mr. Lacy what it was all about. Naturally enough my not being with the party when my escort was would seem mysterious and in need of clearing up. But when I suggested this to Mr. Lacy he met it with a hearty and encouraging laugh.

"Oh, please give us men-folks credit for a little finesse," he protested. "You might have been taken ill and I might have been unfeeling enough to put you in a taxi and send you home, then returning to my merrymaking. Norreys wouldn't catch me with goods—like that. He saw that I wanted to escape notice last night. He won't say a word to me—nor one to you either, Mrs. Harrison, if I know my man."

"Then we mustn't say a word unless Tony—opens the way. We can trust to his bigness to [illegible] him through without the explanation that's coming to him. I think he'd rather—not discuss—things."

"Right!" said Mr. Lacy. "I hope you don't think I've butted in or acted like an officious meddler or anything a shade more unpleasant than that."

"You've acted like a good—pal," I replied.

"That's what I intended. And I'm glad it's all right," he smiled.

Funny Mixup

"You've been dragged into a funny—mix-up," I said slowly. "I've a feeling that you understand without my explaining things that aren't mine—to reveal."

"I think—I do," acknowledged Ralph Lacy gently. "I'm glad you don't resent it. I wasn't going to say a word. But if ever there's anything you want to stage count on me for any job from carpenter to director general, and make up your mind I'll go to it, even if I go to it blind."

"Which is just what you don't seem capable of doing—you trained advertising man," I laughed. "You have a complete publicity sense"—

"And I don't forget Mrs. Grundy either, even if my training hasn't given me a real speaking acquaintance with her and in spite of my rushing around to call before nine a. m. Now may I put you in my chariot and speed you to work?" asked Mr. Lacy.

So I hurried off to the morning's job and fell upon it with vigor. I decided to postpone telling Miss May of my change of address until she got ready to go out for lunch. Then I'd give her the information casually when I asked her to get me a sandwich in order to save time for packing. But my plans miscarried. For toward the end of the morning Virginia Dalton walked in as calmly as if my office had not hitherto been the one place she most carefully avoided. She accepted her introduction to Miss May in a gracious and aloof manner.

EVOLUTION OF MAN

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest

THE Evolution of Man is an example of the kind of book that people nowadays ought to read. But many people not really knowing what is best nourishment for brains prefer to read novels. I am frequently asked for advice on this matter and I offer this bit.

The authors of the books in question, Richard Swann Lull, Harry Burr Ferris, George Howard Parker, James Rowland Angell, Albert Galloway Keller, and Edwin Grant Conklin (what a pity that irresolute parents should furnish two names to waste printers' ink where one would suffice) are all professors and recognized leaders in their special fields, and one is president of Yale University.

If you are in doubt as to what you ought to believe about the evolution of man, and if you won't believe me—and I do not to be sure am not an authority as each of these gentlemen is—then study what they have united to say on the various phases of the question. After that, if you are still undecided, I won't give you up.

Professor Lull attacks the scriptural aspect of the subject to start with. He quotes Doctor John Lightwood, one vice-chancellor of Cambridge University, who stated that "Heaven and earth, centre and circumference, were made in the same instance of time, and clouds full of water, and man was created by the Trinity on the 26th of October, 4004 B. C., at 9 o'clock in the morning."

This Doctor Lightwood deduced as the result of a careful searching of the scripture.

Professor Lull, tackling the subject in other university lights, [illegible] from another side, some 268 years later, proceeds to set forth a quite startling extended chronology which begins with Pithecanthropus (headed, however, with a question mark) as representing the earliest race of man yet discovered, which flourished nearly half a million years ago, and running up through "Heidelberg man" and "Piltdown man," and "Neandertal man," and "Grimaldi man," and "Cro-Magnon man," and last being a marvel of intelligent man power at least ten thousand years before Dr. Lightwood's fateful 9 o'clock in the morning had struck. All this is fascinating.

Then Professor Ferris tells what it means for the theory of evolution that man is a mammal among mammals, and was not the first but the last to develop. It is not a story of a fall but of a climb. This is the "natural history of man." If Oliver Goldsmith had been familiar with its facts, what a restless book he would have written!

Professor Parker explains the evolution of the nervous system. That was the special line that creative intelligence followed, step by step, up from the brute to the human level.

President Angell treats of the evolution of intelligence, and Professor Keller of "societal evolution." Perhaps from the nature of the topics there is more generality and less concreteness in these discussions.

Finally Professor Conklin takes up the "trend" of evolution. There is a glimpse of the flights of thought with which this may inspire the reader to be seen in the following sentence: "If higher species of man evolve in the future it is not unlikely that this will occur as in the past, in connection with great secular changes over which man has no control, such as the rising and sinking of continents, the formation of deserts, or mountains, or oceans, or changes in climate comparable to the glacial and interglacial epoch, during which human evolution made such wonderful progress."

PREVENTING DEAFNESS

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

MOST cases of deafness are preventable, since they usually start in early childhood when local conditions are such that curative treatment is favored very decidedly.

Acute diseases of the ear, consequent upon infections either of the nose and throat or of the whole system, like measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria, are usually taken care of properly, but it is after the subsidence of the acute process that treatment is apt to be relinquished. This is the very time when continued care will usually insure good hearing in after life.

It is safe to assume that every case of acute ear illness will show a defect afterward in hearing. The child ought to hear the ticking of a watch held three feet from the ear. If it be found that the child cannot hear the watch at that distance, don't assume that the ear trouble will clear up or that nothing can be done about it.

If diseased tonsils and adenoids are present they should be removed; cases otherwise doomed to hopeless deafness are frequently saved through this procedure.

MAKE ROOM ATTRACTIVE

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

MOST every home would be a bit improved by the judicious use of an odd bit of furniture. Only the other day a friend, who for years had one of those dismal hallways, completely transformed it by the use of a few bits she picked up at one of the current furniture sales.

A console table with a charming mirror hung above it, a lamp following the lines of the old standing lamp-post of Mr. Pickwick's day, and a single tall backed hall chair, bespeaking dignity as well as welcome, were the bits that brought about the transformation.

For the orderly soul fond of sewing, the Martha Washington sewing table adds grace to either bedroom or living room.

For the woman whose joy comes from serving tea, besides the tea wagon there is the muffin stand with its dainty little shelves for the extra jam, muffins, tiny tea cakes and what-not.

Footstools in great variety are to be found in the shops. Not only are they to be used for the feet, but some varieties are just wide enough to be drawn up to the fireplace and squatted upon when one is in the mood for musing or listening to the crackle of the logs.

Sometimes a cold, uninteresting room may be made decidedly attractive by the judicious use of a fern stand. The zinc lined inside box permits of the ferns being removed, pots and all, and having done to them all that lovers of ferns know about to keep them fresh and healthy and green.

THE ENEMIES OF WOMEN By BLASCO IBANEZ

Start Here Today This Engrossing Story of Life and Love from the Master Pen of One of the World's Greatest Novelists

Prince Lubimoff refuses to renew his acquaintance with Anna, sister of the Cossack he fought with Prince Michael Fedor, a Russian of fabulous wealth, is at Monte Carlo while the great war is on. With him is his friend, Attilo Castro, and other acquaintances. The prince, on returning to Villa Sirena, finds everything changed owing to the war. He announces, to the amazement of his hearers, that he is ruined. Castro smilingly remarks that he would be content with one-tenth of the remains. The Prince proposes that Castro and a few of their friends live together with the proviso that no women shall ater their lives. They will be known as "The Enemies of Women." Castro tells the Prince he has seen the Duchess de Dellile. The Prince says he will not receive her. The story reverts to the marriage of the Prince's father and mother and the son's early training. His father dies and his mother marries again. Her new sister-in-law has a small daughter, Alicia. They come to Paris to live. Alicia fights with Michael, who returns to Russia and takes up military training.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez.
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown.

MICHAEL felt he must say something at once to break the silent charm of the beautiful witch who, sure of her final victory, was smiling and blowing in his direction puffs of cigarette smoke. So Michael alluded to her amorous fame, to the great number of lovers she was supposed to have had. He thought that might widen the gap between them.

She remained silent a moment, with her disturbing glance fixed on Michael.

"But how about you? Do you think I don't know about your wanderings over the planet in quest of unusual types of women and new sensations? . . . We have done both the same; only it wasn't necessary for me to travel around so much to learn just what you have learned. . . . And you are not so absurd as to imagine, as certain men do, that our cases are not to be compared because we are of different sex."

The Prince listened silently as she expounded her ideas. She was deeply in love with life, and in return she demanded all that life could give her. . . . The minds of other women were occupied with questions of a material nature: desire for wealth, longings for luxury, domestic cares.

As for her, she possessed everything; tomorrow held no worries for her; not even in regard to her beauty, sustained by wonderful health, which seemed to increase as she grew older and abused her strength.

"Understand me, Michael. Don't laugh to yourself. You know that I can believe in love as the majority of women do. I know that a certain amount of illusion is necessary to color its material aspect; we all lie about it a little, to enjoy the lie even though we know it as such; but way down deep, I laugh at love as the world understands it, just as I laugh at so many things which people venerate."

Gradually Closer to Him

Michael suddenly realized that while she was talking she had been coming gradually closer, from cushion to cushion, as she lays resting on her elbows. She was almost at his feet, with head held high, endeavoring to envelop him in a web of magnetism with her fixed stare raised to his. She seemed like a black and-white snake, at full length, moving little by little from along the cushions as though they were rocks of various colors.

"The only man of whom I have ever thought the least bit," she continued in a half whisper, "is you. . . . Don't be alarmed; it isn't love. I am not going to reverse things, and propose to you. Perhaps it is because as children we used to hate each other; because you never wanted me; it is such an unheard of thing in my life, that it alone is enough to interest me."

She put her hands on his knees, as though she were about to rise.

"When I saw you, after so many years, I remembered that I had heard about you. Many women I know have been sweethearts of yours, and I said to myself, 'Why not I, too?' Then I thought of all the men who have come into my life, and I added: 'Why not he?' "

And now Alicia's elbows were resting on his knees and their lips and eyes were almost on the same level. As she talked to him he felt her breath on his face, like the breeze in an Asiatic forest, whispering beneath the room. The spices and flowers with which the wine was saturated seemed to float in that volatile caress.

Michael tried to make a move to repel her advance, but one of Alicia's hands was already limp on his shoulder. He merely shook his head.

The Scene Recalled

"Don't be afraid," she added, prolonging her whisper. "There are no embarrassing obligations with me. You will leave me when you wish; perhaps I shall leave you before. . . . Let us live in the present, like people who know the secret of life, and what it can give. . . . Then, if we tire of each other, good bye."

When afterward from time to time the Prince recalled the scene he felt a certain annoyance. He was sure of having seemed brutal and ridiculous. He who, in his travels, had met one woman after another, and often recalled them rebelled with a sense of shame and irritation at the advances of the No!

Duchess.

With her, never.

An Old Antipathy

Rising within him he felt the same antipathy that had made him raise his whip in his youth.

Then he would recollect himself standing in the middle of the study, looking anxiously toward the door, muttering stupid excuses. "I must go; it is late. Some friends are waiting for me. . . ." She had gained control of herself. She, too, was standing, looking at him with astonishment and disdain.

"You are the only one who could do such a thing," she said in a cutting tone, as they parted. "I am clearly by now. I now hate you as you hate me. My whim was stupid. . . . But you have paid dearly to flatter your vanity, and no one in the world will ever be able to follow your example. If I were a child I would strike you again with a whip as I did in the Bois, but instead consider that I am repeating everything I said then."

It was some time before they saw each other again.

When Prince Michael had set in order everything concerning the huge inheritance that came to him at the death of his mother, the Princess Lubimoff, he planned to resume his carefree voyagings about the world, to which he had devoted the past five years. But the young Prince planned to travel now on a much more magnificent scale, for it was no longer necessary for him to ask the Princess for money. As his mother's sole heir he was now one of the very wealthy men of the world.

Those who were in charge of the administration of his affairs —an office with numerous clerks, almost equalling the government bureau of a small state—made the announcement that the fifteen million francs which the Princess had been receiving annually would soon be twenty, for the development of the Russian railways allowed more intensive workings of his mines.

The Prince's "aide-de-camp"—the old Colonel Marcos Toledo of Carlist revolutionary days—was put in charge of tearing down the heavy mediaeval walls of Villa-Sirena, which the Princess had ordered constructed just before her death. The castle was to be rebuilt now according to the Prince's taste.

The house was to be a simple structure, pure in line, in the walls of which were to be stored heat and cold, according to the season, water ready to circulate throughout and electricity darting in luminous streams or stirring the air with a fanning breeze.

LAND O' DREAMS

NEW SERIES BY NOTED PSYCHO-ANALYST

By Hereward Carrington, Ph.D.,
Noted Writer and Author of Works on Psycho-Analysis.

DREAMS occur during that odd state known to us as "sleep," upon the mystery of which we have already touched in this series of articles. It has occurred to me that my readers might like a few practical hints or advice upon the question of how to induce sleep and prevent insomnia. This article, therefore, does not deal with dreams proper, but with the state of sleep; and I trust that, although somewhat aside from our general topic, it will nevertheless prove of value.

Bodily conditions have a great deal to do with preventing the oncoming of natural sleep. If the stomach is too full, from a hearty meal, late at night, this will often cause heaviness and insomnia; and when the subject does finally fall asleep he will awaken tired in the morning, unrefreshed.

On the other hand, if actual hunger be present, this will also prevent sleep, and a little warm milk will serve to bring the blood down to the stomach and away from the brain and assist in bringing about a quiet repose.

The skin should be thoroughly aired before retiring. Dr. Johnson used to say that if he could not sleep he would throw off all his clothes and walk about the bedroom nude for several minutes, thoroughly ventilating and aerating the skin. As soon as you begin to feel cold you should at once don your night clothes and hope into bed. Needless to say, nothing should be worn at night except suitable night clothes. It is extremely unwholesome to sleep in any kind of underclothes which are worn in the day time.

A warm bath will often induce a feeling of calm repose, followed by a feeling of natural sleepiness. This will not only serve to draw the blood away from the brain to the skin, but will also soothe the nerves all over the body.

A few minutes' active exercise and some deep breathing exercises will also promote sleep. The breathing should be slow and rhythmical. Two minutes of this will often suffice.

After getting into bed, all lights should be extinguished, and the senses composed as much as possible. The thoughts should be composed, and free from worry and excitement. Going slowly over the events of the day and planning for the morrow is often a good way to compose them. But if this process proves too stimulating and exciting, thoughts of this kind should be banished, after a few minutes' reflection.

Physical relaxation is of the utmost importance. When you come to analyse your own feelings, if unable to sleep, you will probably find that your jaw is shut tight, your "solar plexus" is contracted, and your neck and right instead of allowing your head to relax. Let the weight of your head fall upon the pillow. Every time you feel your muscles tightening up, relax them voluntarily.

The mind must be composed and made as passive as possible, just before going to sleep. If you can think or "visualize" a perfect black, then your nerves are relaxed, and you will soon fall asleep.

(In the next article Dr. Carrington will write on Somnambulism)

Kellogg's Bran is nature's relief from the terrors of auto-intoxication

Never make light of constipation or any one of its symptoms—there is no telling what disease you may be heading into! The one thing to do—IMMEDIATELY—is to fight constipation to the last ditch! Not with pills or cathartics; they cannot give you lasting relief! Not with foods with a low bran content; they do not have the bran-bulk to do the work!

What you need, what will give you permanent relief is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Kellogg's is scientifically prepared to relieve constipation. It will relieve the chronic case or the mild case. You need it, your family needs it!

But, you must eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—each day! At least two tablespoonfuls; in chronic cases this amount with each meal! And, eating Kellogg's Bran is a delight rather than a hardship. It has a delicious, appealing nut-like flavor that wins the most fastidious appetite.

Every day when you eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal, sprinkled on your favorite hot or cold cereal or cooked or mixed with hot cereals, think of the health every spoonful contains for you! Think how Kellogg's Bran is sweeping and cleansing the alimentary tract; how it is driving out the toxic poisons and freeing your system from dangers of dreaded diseases! Your physician will recommend it.

Kellogg's Bran is extra-delicious made into countless bakery batches. Recipes on every package.

All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran; it is also obtainable at first-class hotels and clubs in individual packages. Ask for it at your restaurant.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today is lucky for COURTING

THIS is a very good day in spite of it being the thirteenth. It is particularly propitious for traveling or entering upon a new field of endeavor. Any important business begun today will undoubtedly succeed. Peace and prosperity will reign in the home moved into today. Letters and other documents may be signed after 10 a. m. and before 3 p. m. without fear of failure.

Do your courting today! This is the day to ask the girl to have you. We would almost guarantee she would say "yes." Perhaps you are hesitating about accepting Tom but if you will let him slip the ring on today the union will be a happy one.

Those born today are endowed with a noble and generous character. If this means you and you find yourself loved and sought after, don't take it too seriously, as you are inclined to be vain, proud, ostentatious and have a desire to rule over others. You are also inclined to be socially ambitious. Don't push yourself and perhaps thereby forfeit some of your old friends. Your ambition will be realized in time.

It is interesting to note that the former Emperor of Germany, Kaiser Wilhelm, was born under your Zodiacal sign.

Have you fair complexion and blue eyes? If so, you are a true scion or daughter of Aquarius.

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

Will you please let me know if it is proper for a girl to call on her new relations after her engagement is announced? I claim it is, but some of my friends say I should wait to be invited.

ANXIOUS.

The young lady waits for her fiance's parents to call on her. This visit should be made quite after the engagement has been formally announced. If they have not called, suggest to your fiance that you will be glad to meet them whenever it is convenient for them to call.

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

We have been asked to be godfather and godmother to a new-born infant. Will you kindly advise us what is the customary gift?

I AND L.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

BE SURE TO READ THEM TO CHILDREN

By Blanche Silver.

The Discontented Little Giraffe.

"MY goodness" drawled Mama Giraffe to her youngest offspring. "I'd be ashamed if I were you to be complaining about your long neck. Why, I'm mighty proud of mine and always have been. Remember, you couldn't get along without it. So don't be foolish."

"Maybe you call it foolish," snapped Young Giraffe, "but I don't agree with you. I'm sick and tired carrying my head so high up in the air. I wish I had a tiny little neck or none at all."

Mama Giraffe shook her head sadly, put on her bonnet and went out of the house. There didn't seem to be anything she could say that would make her son change his mind and it only made her feel badly to think he wouldn't listen to reason.

"Please Give Me Back My Neck."

After his mama had gone Young Giraffe took to his heels and ran off to the woods. There he met Bunny Rabbit and stopped to tell him his troubles.

"I wish I had a neck like yours," he grumbled.

"Now isn't that funny," laughed his neighbor, Bunny Rabbit. "I was just admiring your long neck and wishing I had one like it. Yes, I'd give anything for a long neck so I could see when old Father Brown's dog was coming."

"Oh, dear," sighed the discontented giraffe. "I wish I could trade with you. I'd willingly do it."

"Nothing so easy in all the world," laughed a tinkling voice, and Happy Giggles, the little elfin from Make-Believe Land, hopped from behind a bush and tipped his hat to the two friends. "If you are both willing I'll see that the bargain is carried out."

This pleased both parties, and as quick as a flash Bunny Rabbit scampered off in one direction, his head held high on a long, long neck, and Young Giraffe ran away to the woods with his neck no longer than Bunny Rabbit's had been before.

My, but he was happy—at least he thought he was. It was so funny, though, when he grew hungry and tried to eat the sweet grasses under him.

Young Giraffe found that his legs were so very long and his neck so very short that he couldn't come anywhere near the ground with his mouth.

By the time night arrived Young Giraffe was sorry for his bargain and began to cry bitterly, when up jumped Bunny Rabbit. He was crying, too, for he had found it doubly hard to get along with a long neck.

"I wish you had your old long neck back," he sobbed. "I nearly got caught by Farmer Brown's dog. My neck was so long I couldn't get under the log. Oh please give me back my short neck."

"I wish that I could," sobbed Young Giraffe. "I'll never wish such a thing again."

"Fine!" laughed the same tiny voice, and before the two friends knew what was happening Happy Giggles had been there with his magic and gone. But one thing they both knew, they each had been given their own necks again and they both ran home happy as could be.

That was the last time Mama Giraffe ever heard her son complaining about his long neck.

TELL THESE AT DINNER

Little Willie was of an inquiring turn of mind. He was always asking questions.

"Daddy," he asked one day, "is today, tomorrow?"

"No, my son, of course it isn't tomorrow," was the reply.

"But you said it was," murmured Willie.

"When did I say today was tomorrow?" asked father.

"Yesterday," answered Willie.

"Well, it was." Today was tomorrow yesterday, but today is today, just as yesterday was today yesterday but is yesterday today, and tomorrow will be today tomorrow which makes today yesterday and tomorrow all at once. Now run along and play."

"My husband has rooms at his mother's house," said a woman to a magistrate, "and as I object to living with relatives I would not go there. He can come and live with me."

"Quite right," said the magistrate. "Where are you living?"

No one, however great, escapes the grim reaper, declared Edward Young in "Night Thoughts."

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How Can She Meet Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and in love with a young man whom I've been seeing for the past three years while going to and from work.

This young man lives in the same vicinity as I do, but I do not know anybody acquainted with him, therefore it is impossible for me to be introduced.

Would it be proper for me to talk first or is it his place? If it is my place to talk, how would you advise me to go about it? Although I do not believe in flirting, I'd do anything to make his acquaintance.

D.

Leave your little adventure in the land of make-believe. Go on fancying that the young man is your Prince Charming. But don't do anything about it. If he had any real force of character or imagination or honest desire to know you, he would have found some way of meeting you during these three years. It could have been managed legitimately. But evidently he either finds all the satisfaction he wants in looking at you—or else he isn't sturdy and independent enough to think up a way or meeting you properly. You've woven your dreams about a man who exists chiefly in your imagination.

Being a True Friend

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

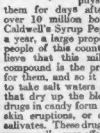
For four years I have been going about with a girl. We had a quarrel, and through a girl friend we came together again. When I was out with this girl she seems very cold toward me. The other night I phoned and told her I could not see her because I had to work late. Later in the evening she called me up and doubted my word. Will you kindly tell me what to do in this case, as I care a great deal for her.

G. A. R.

BE SURE in your heart that you are honest and loyal to this girl—and then you will find it easy to prove your true feeling in actions. The girl isn't fully convinced that you are a true friend—but if you are, a little time and you can prove it.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way



THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily operated laxative obtainable, and form a habit. Any physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It has been successfully sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not form a habit, and Caldwell's doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enos S. Costa of Catonsville, Md., whose family uses it frequently. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headache, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that everyone in the family can use when constipation, a cold or fever appears?" Well, I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an ample test. Write me where to send it. Address W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Over 40 Highs Are Set in Strong New York Market Embracing a Broad List

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By Frank H. Meloon—

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor of Boston American

Up-to-the-minute reports show that our New England textile industry is still flourishing, despite the bogey of an "exodus to the South." When the claim was first made that New England mills were to "remove their plants to the South," I pointed out that it was extremely unlikely they would leave a section of the country where they had been able to accumulate stock dividends running from 100 to several hundred per cent.

And I showed where one of the mills mentioned as intending to join in the alleged exodus was paying 20 per cent. in cash dividends for the year on top of a substantial stock bonus.

A recent article in the Boston News Bureau, which did not originate the mill exodus inventions, declared the stories had probably been intended as propaganda to intimidate labor leaders working in behalf of the shorter work hours for mill employes; and that is just what I declared in the Boston American the very first day the "exodus to the South" dispatch went out over the telegraph wires.

Boston ranks as of premier importance as a woolen centre. Our warehouses today are teeming with wool held by astute dealers in anticipation of additional advances for the sheared wealth of farm and ranch.

In State street there is a very bullish tone for American Woolen, which has lately acted excellently market-wise. Consolidated Textile, which came under William M. Wood management only a few weeks ago, has held the limelight, leading the New York Stock Exchange in activity on two successive days in the past week. Good things are talked of for this stock, now that it has backing of American Woolen Company interests. Of course, it is still speculative, but it was not even that until the recent change. It is worth noting, by the way, that when Mr. Wood, who looms today as one of the biggest figures in the industrial world, took charge of American Woolen, the stock could have been secured around $6 a share.

Now Woolen sells around its $100 par and pays 7 per cent.

One may take it as granted that put and call operators do not expect Endicott Johnson, one of the largest shoe plants in the world, to rise a great deal immediately after it goes ex-dividend 20 per cent. in stock Thursday. One house offers a call for seven days, 4 up for $20 on 50-share lots. If order is entered before ex-dividend date, so that profits would be figured on 60 shares instead of 50.

Months ago I remarked that "salt water" scares were closely connected with Wall street stock manipulations and that their seriousness was always to be exaggerated.

Now we find President Wylie of the Mexican Petroleum Co. in his testimony at Washington emphasizing the fact that salt water is not nearly as great a bugaboo in Mexican oils as it has been pictured. Bears in Wall street, aided by one or more unscrupulous news agencies, made periodic use of the salt water encroachment stories last year in order to batter the market for Mexican oils.

When the longs had been thoroughly squeezed, they found that the salt water was a necessary foundation for the oil. By spreading their wells and cutting down the flow, the oil companies in Mexico are now getting smaller quantities of water.

Many confident forecasts are being made regarding the future of Pan-American issues.

S. O. (Indiana) Imperial Oil, Ltd.

Just what prompted these two Standard Oil subsidiaries to suddenly jump into first place market supremacy may puzzle some. If you had our specially prepared analysis on these two companies, you would immediately know what is responsible for their present activities and probable market future.

Boston Notes

CENTRAL Leather is said to be running at increased rate of operations with business improving noticeably.

ANACONDA has paid out in Montana taxes more than it has earned in Montana operations in past four years. New State measure to put tax of 1 per cent. on gross proceeds of metal mines in that State is being hotly fought.

BOSTON & Albany in 1922 returned profit of $1,777,000 to New York Central. The 1921 Boston & Albany deficit was $1,351,948 after all charges, and deficit in 1920 was $112,241.

COMMITTEE of arrangements suggests Clearing House sheets should not be made out until comparison slips have been exchanged, otherwise errors may occur, correction of which leads to confusion.

WOOL market tendency appears still to be upward with the outlook that it will continue this way for some time.

AMERICAN Hide & Leather surplus of $1,022,660 for 1922 was by far the best since 1919 and indicates definite upturn for leather industry is under way.

INCREASING demands for service being made on central stations, necessitating rapid expansion of generating capacity, are reflected in several large orders, recently received by the General Electric Company.

HOOSAC Cotton mills reports statement of its financial condition as of December 30, 1922, showing total assets of $3,382,687, compared with $2,931,766 at the end of preceding calendar year.

NIPISSING in January, mined ore of estimated value $170,134. It shipped 253,081 fine ounces of silver of estimated value $168,058 the value of the month's silver production was 64 cents an ounce.

C. F. ADAMS, president of John T. Connor Company, states negotiations by Jones Brothers Tea Company, and banking interests for the purchase of Connor Company have been under discussion for about thirty days, but are far from being completed.

22½ P. C. IS PAID BY BRITISH TOBACCO

Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland for the year to October 31, 1922, shows trading profit of £7,194,557, plus miscellaneous receipts, making £7,199,077, against £6,927,641 the previous year. JAPS ONLY ASK A FAIR DEAL, ENVOY SAYS

San Francisco, Feb. 13 (By Associated Press).—Lack of knowledge of the facts and lack of understanding of each nation's motives were reasons ascribed by Masano Hanihara, newly appointed ambassador from Japan, for differences between the American and Japanese peoples.

The ambassador spoke at a dinner in his honor given by the Japanese Society of America and S. Yada, Japanese consul-general.

"With regard to our particular countries," he said, "there are no vital interests that conflict. It is true that there is a question between us—and probably that is the only question which has been and still is to some extent vexing the minds of our peoples. Difficult as it may seem at times, it is not more than anything else due to a lack of an accurate knowledge of the actual facts in the case and to the lack of a proper understanding of each others motives.

"I trust you will believe me when I say that Japan has never asked and never will ask you or anybody anything that is impossible or unreasonable, in spite of occasional insinuations to the contrary.

"All that we want is to be accorded the same fair treatment you accord to other people. In other words, no unfair discriminations on account of race or nationality. We ask no more, no less.

"On the other hand, I know that you want always to be fair and friendly to us."

Breaks your Cold in 24 hours

DROP a Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine Tablet in a glass of water. Observe that it disintegrates within 10 seconds. Subject any other "quinine tablet" to the same experiment and notice that it takes from 30 minutes to an hour and a half to "break up."

It's quick action you need when you sense the first sign of a cold. It's quick action you get when you take Hill's and break a cold in 24 hours, or la grippe in three days.

Embargo on Coal

Interstate Commerce Commission Acts on Railway Situation Only When Spring Is at Hand.

The Interstate Commerce Commission announces that it will call the railroads to a hearing to determine why an embargo should not be placed upon the exportation of coal to Canada, and why a special effort should not be made by the railroads to supply coal to New England.

Isn't this a perfect example of locking the barn door after the horse is stolen? But five weeks of official Winter remain. In five weeks official Spring will be here. In all probability the hearing will not be over for a week and it may be three weeks. At least it will be four weeks from the time an order is given to the railroads until official Spring is here. It will take the railroads at least three weeks to deliver their first coal under that order by rearranging their shipping routes, and by the time that the order becomes effective, Spring will be here.

All these facts were known last Fall. The Interstate Commerce Commission could have anticipated this situation and acted just as well last Fall as it is acting now. The Interstate Commerce Commission knew better than any other body, or ought to have known better than any other body, the physical condition of the railroads, as a result of their rash attempt to exploit their workingmen.

The Interstate Commerce Commission knew or ought to have known of the shipments of coal to Canada while the American people in New England were freezing. Canada probably does not need any more coal and that may be the reason why the Interstate Commerce Commission proposes to entertain a motion to stop these shipments.

The other day we called attention to the fact that the City of Montreal advertised to furnish coal to the people of Montreal for $16 a ton and limited the amount which each person could demand TO FIVE TONS! Well, now, five tons will pretty nearly bring the average man through the rest of the Winter. This is American coal, you understand, which the City of Montreal is offering to its citizens. This is American coal which has to be hauled farther beyond Boston than Boston is from the coal mines, and has to be hauled over the hills and through the forests where the thermometer is from 20 to 40 and 50 degrees below zero, and where the snow lies deep four months of the year. Yet it costs $10 a ton to haul that coal and deliver it from the coal mines to Boston and only costs the same amount to haul it and deliver it twice as far. Children in the primary school know enough arithmetic to understand the absurdity of this situation.

What are we going to do about it? Probably nothing, but to grin and bear it. But if we do nothing about it but grin and bear it, we simply show ourselves unfit for self-government because the problem is so simple and the remedy is so apparent and so easy. The whole difficulty is in the private management and operation of our railroads and the remedy is the public ownership and operation of our railroads. Does anybody believe that the United States Government would ship coal to Canada when our own people were freezing for it? Not if they expected a vote from New England.

How We Love Mystery

And Mysterious Letters

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

One thing above all others appeals to feeble human imagination, and that is MYSTERY. Mr. Updegrove tells the police that he learned the passwords, grips and "mystic initials" of the Ku Klux Klan. The mystic initials are K. O. T. O. P.

Those five letters have two meanings, of course. One meaning for outsiders is "Knights of the Open Palm." The SECRET meaning is "Klansmen Observe Their Oath Persistently."

There has always been faith in mysterious letters. Once, before anti-toxins were known, men "protected themselves" against the plague by tattooing on chest or arms the magic word "Abracadabra," a jumble of letters. Or they wrote the letters on a piece of paper and swallowed it. It didn't keep away the plague in the least, but it did make them happy and it did make them feel safer, which is almost as good; you are less apt to contract disease when you're cheerful.

Two Cures With One 'Passe'

Coue Brings Old Truth

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

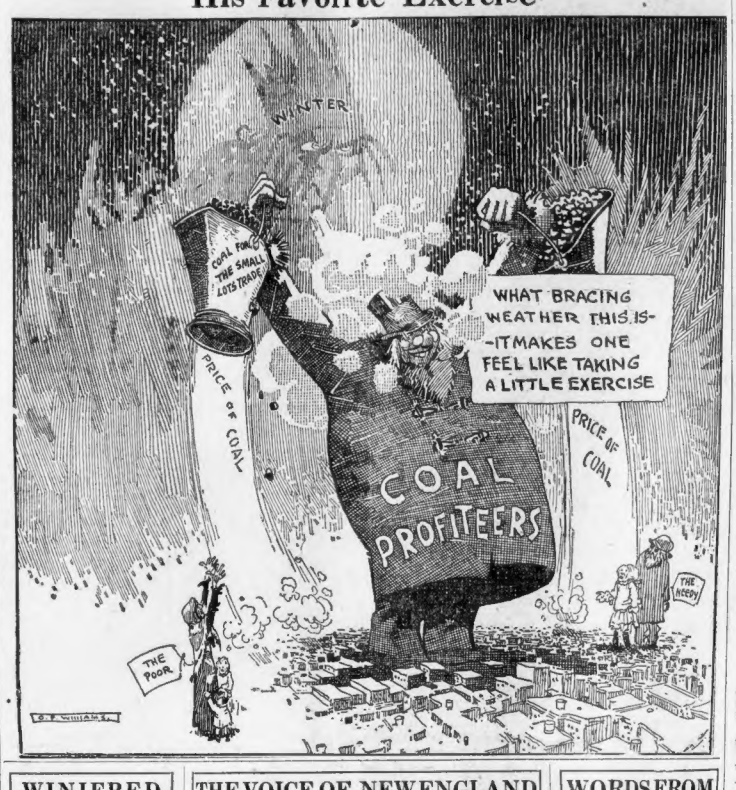
Mons. Coue is becoming a wholesaler. He said to a paralytic, "Ca passe," meaning "your trouble is going." Instantly the cripple got up and walked. And a cripple next to him, to whom Mr. Coue had not yet said anything, also walked.

Inside the hall, cripples fought to get near him. Outside, with police keeping them in line, they knelt on the wet pavement.

They were proving there the power of imagination, as Coue proved it inside. Coue brought nothing new to America, only the ability to inspire confidence in an old idea, which was expressed by his countryman, Racine, when Louis XIV. was King.

"Ne vexillez pas vous perdre, et vous etes, sauve"—don't seek to destroy yourself, and you are saved.

His Favorite Exercise



WINIFRED BLACK ON HAREMS

By Winifred Black

OUT of the harem they're sending them—one hundred and fifty of the Sultan's wives over there in Turkey.

Black-eyed houris with little arched feet and round wrists and dimpled elbows.

Daughters of desert chiefs, daughters of the Caliph, the beggar's daughter and the daughter of the strange being who calls the faithful to prayer from the top of the prayer towers of alabaster and ivory—for there is no rank or pride of blood in beauty.

They are going back now—one hundred and fifty of them! Some to the desert to live in the black tents of their fathers, some to the mountains where they will have to herd sheep like goat-herds, some to the bazaar and the walled tops of the ocean towns, where they will wrap themselves in their scented veils and beckon careless mankind to ruin in the ancient fashion of their ancient way.

And they are sending out notices to the men of Turkey and other nations, telling them about the beauties who are now free to marry any man who chooses them.

Wouldn't you like to be one of them, little Miss Independence, with your own job and your own latch-key and your own savings bank book and your own self-respect and your own courage and your own decent pride—wouldn't you love to be put up for sale to the highest bidder like a horse or a dog?

I'd rather be the homeliest, pug-nosiest, knock-kneelest, freckle-faciest, most commonplace little cash girl up on a platform in the cheapest shop in the busiest bargain season—in the United States of America—than to be the most beautiful creature who ever breathed—if I had to breathe behind the lattice in a horrible harem.

Strange Flashes Cause Alarm

EUGENE, Ore., Feb. 13.—Residents here are still conjecturing over a natural phenomenon which flashed across the sky early one morning recently.

The lightning-like flashes started from the horizon and shot into the air fanwise to great heights. Recurrent flashes followed for a quarter of an hour.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Cross of Honor

Editor Boston American:

So Charles R. Gow, the meddling president of the Associated Industries, says the Boston American will drive public men out of office by criticism such as that of Fuel Administrator Phelan? Enmity from Gow is the Boston American's Cross of Honor. At least, we have one paper that is not afraid of the Associated Industries. Gow once set out to criticise former Governor McCall, and the latter accepted his resignation as member of the License Board. Evidently Gow thinks the divine right of criticism in this State rests with him and his self-constituted Associated Industries. What did they ever do to make Massachusetts safe for democracy?

J. E. H.

Limited Power

Editor Boston American:

I am surprised to note that in your comments on the "coal situation" you constantly refer to Fuel Administrator Phelan. A cursory glance at the statutes would show you that he is not fuel administrator, that he has very limited, if any, power whatever under the law. Such being the fact it would seem that he may be doing the best he can in a very unfortunate, one might say, impossible situation.

I can conceive of no more better calculated to bring about just the conditions under which we suffer here in Massachusetts than the discrediting of our legal fuel administrator by the Governor and the assigning of the job to a man, however able and public spirited, entirely out of touch with the conditions and without authority to function.

F. W. MERRICK.

Coal Mass Meeting

Editor Boston American:

As one of your loyal supporters, would suggest to round out your splendid campaign to get coal for shivering New England by calling a monster mass meeting at Mechanics Building. Call for nationalizing of the coal mines. Invite Senators Lodge and Walsh, Governor Cox and other New England Governors. Also the New England railroad presidents, to this meeting.

CONSTANT PATRON.

Punish Gougers

Editor Boston American:

In regard to your expose of sidetracked coal, the United States government does not dare and the State is afraid to act. The fuel administrators are merely dispensers of "hot air" and accomplish nothing. Therefore I suggest a remedy. Take any railroad directors found within Massachusetts and all coal dealers, retail or brokers, strip them to the waist and parade them through the streets for three hours per day. Also remove from their homes all coal and keep it out for the Winter.

This lesson for a few weeks will bring results.

Wireless Waves Act as Maids

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Wireless maids are the latest of late things in Paris.

George Franchette, president of the French Society for the Study of Wireless, has replaced servants in his home by—the Eiffel Tower.

At 6 a. m. a wireless wave from the tower sets off an alarm clock beside Franchette's bed, opens the windows and pulls back the shutters and starts an electric stove heating his morning cup of chocolate, which is automatically controlled so that it never boils over.

Official time is given him by wireless-controlled clocks in all rooms, doors are opened by buttons, the controlling force of which are waves from the Eiffel Tower, and every evening Monsieur Franchette gets the day's news from a wireless receiver as he is seated at dinner.

Next Winter, he says, he is going to heat his house by wireless.

SURGERY RESTORES A DEAD MAN TO LIFE

By Herbert Kaufman

FREDERICK CURTIN was a corpse. No doubt of that. His pulse was still, his lungs had quit. For eight minutes all his motors were quiet, all his vital forces exhausted.

Then Dr. John Gannon, chief surgeon at the Washington Asylum, slashes through the senseless diaphram. Flesh does not even quiver under steel.

Gannon inserts his hand and takes hold of the heart. He begins to stroke and massage it. A throb—another, then a faint, steady beat.

He primes the little red engine with adrenalin. The chest starts to rise and fall, vital fluids course again, arteries resume work, nerves return to action, the brain shakes off its coma and commands sight and speech. Curtin opens his eyes and his lips. He sees and talks. For eight hours science and death struggle for the decision. For eight hours a man is resurrected.

But the worn and weakened machine cannot stand the dual shock of drug and knife. Curtin dies again.

That's the sort of things doctors are doing nowadays.

The Earth Still Crowded With Dragons

Last week a Wisconsin specialist successfully shoved the heart aside to make room for his instruments and removed a brass tack from a girl's lung.

The cables yesterday tell how an Italian woman, laid out and ready for burial, was temporarily restored to the world while the hearse waited at her door.

Mystery and chemistry are waging such a battle as the stars never before witnessed.

St. George has dismounted and doffed his armor. He fights today with a scapel for a lance and his sword is a microscope.

The earth is still crowded with dragons, but their present lairs are foulness and decay and infection. The fairest hopes of the future are in the laboratory and the clinic.

Ours is a more miraculous time than the age of miracles.

Merlin Punches the Time Clock

Magic is our main business. Al Borak, the invisible beast on which Mohammed rode through the heavens, now gallops in the wake of a Handley Page. His terrible roar is drowned by the fury of a bombing plane.

Kemal, about to pit himself against the forces of Christianity, may profitably consider the allegory.

The sons of Merlin are punching time clocks at Schenectady. General Electric catalogues hold more thrills than Arturian legend.

Steinmetz, the twisted little man who gave electricity the mathematics which changed Niagara into a lamplighter and drove transcontinental trains from waterfalls a thousand miles away, has stolen the secrets of Jove and causes thunderbolts in a button.

The poor old "giant with the ten league voice" can't even get a job as messenger at a radio station.

The Djinn of the Lamp Celebrates

Edison, the djinn of the lamp, runs a wizard school in New Jersey. Dare to prate of your disadvantages or handicaps, with incandescent bulbs, talking machines, motion pictures, storage batteries, concrete-poured houses and multiplex telegraphy to remind you what an unschooled newsboy made of himself and by himself.

We celebrate Edison's seventy-sixth birthday today. Seventy-six years of supreme service to progress.

Behold one man whose Eldorado mind created more wealth than all the picks and shovels of a century prospected.

He Left His Gold Mine at Home

Roentgen, born a year before Edison, died Saturday. We haven't begun to estimate what humanity owes him. Experimenting with a Crookes tube, he discovered the X-ray and revealed a still limitless empire to research.

Crookes, incidently, was off in South Africa hunting for gold at the time, never realizing that he had abandoned a property more valuable to the race than the richest diggings of the Rand.

X-rays added a new dimension to surgery. Operations are no longer blind adventures. Even cancer is yielding to their sterilizing power. We probably shan't need radio after all to control this hitherto invulnerable horror.

But farther reaching horrors still elude arrest.

Europe Rushes to the Abyss

Social diseases slay and incapacitate over several hundred millions of each generation. A world protected from such blights could fill its treasuries to overflowing with the salvaged productivity of the afflicted.

Tuberculosis is a heavier drain upon universal income.

The conditions that perpetuate consumption can be removed at half the cost of its ravages. Nine-tenths of prevalent diseases are controllable.

The 1918-1919 flu outbreak killed 548,000 persons. This slaughter could have been prevented with one year of the victims' combined earnings.

If European countries don't abandon their suicidal plans and plots and begin to check famine, plague and disorganization, they will soon land in the abysses, where Rome and Tyre and Babylon lie moldering.

The Ways of Wizardry

Nine years of war and uncertainty, nine years of poisonous hates and racking griefs, nine years of short rations and wrenching poverty, have so shattered universal nerves and so preyed upon faith and hope that sanity and self-respect begin to break bounds. Strange and devastating morals have succeeded pre-war restraint.

Justice and order struggle against drug waves and waves of violence. Men and women begin to take the law in their own hands. Reverence for the fundamental institutions of society is already a dead letter. Constituted authority is flouted on all sides. This largely over there.

But sufficient of it here to advise a continuation of minding our own business while we put house in order and prepare for the splendid years ahead that shall be ours if we but pursue traditional policies and continue in the ways of common sense—and wizardry.
